Rivers Proclaims Martial Law To Bar Miller From Road Post

OUSTED CHAIRMAN IS BALKED DESPITE ORDER OF COURT

Troops Stand Guard for 'Protection of State Highway Department and All Its Properties.'

Governor Rivers yesterday invoked martial law to prevent W. L. Miller from returning to the State Highway Department as chairman of the board under the protection of the civil courts.

The Governor ordered martial law, he said, for "the protection of the State Highway Department and all its properties." He said the department "is not operating under martial law but only under the protection of martial law."

The edict, placing the physical properties of the Highway Department under military control, specified that the affairs of the department "as such by the legally constituted highway board composed of Hon. L. L. Patten, Hon. J. L. Gillis and Hon. H. H. Watson."

Miller, accompanied by his attorney, James A. Branch, appeared at the Highway Department several hours after Adjutant General John E. Stoddard had placed two troops at the doors leading into the building and two in front of Miller's former office.

Lieutenant Colonel James H. Skelton, of the state military department, met the ousted chairman in the corridor and handed him a copy of the martial law proclamation. Branch then read Colonel Skelton the order issued Saturday night by Judge W. R. Smith at Nashville enjoining Patten and his associates from interfering with Miller's conduct as chairman. Skelton said he felt that the martial law edict superseded the civil court order and denied Miller's request that he be permitted to enter his former office.

To Make Radio Address.

The ousted chairman remained for a short time in the board room across the hall from his old office but after a few minutes he and Branch left the building.

"All I have to say at this time is that I am not surprised at what happened this morning in the light of events of the last 10 or 12 months," Miller declared.

The ousted chairman has scheduled a radio address over Station WSB at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. He has announced that in this speech he will answer an attack made on him by Governor Rivers last week.

Branch said late yesterday that he was studying the Governor's martial law edict. Asked if he planned to combat it in any way.

Hopefully but in vain, W. Linton Miller (center), ousted chairman of the State Highway Board, went back to the highway building yesterday morning armed with a court order which he hoped would enable him to resume his duties. He found Governor Rivers had proclaimed martial law at daybreak. Miller did not enter his former office. Shown in the picture (left to right) are Private Edgar Lamkin, of the 179th Field Artillery; Jack Neibling, former superintendent of the building; Chairman Miller; J. A. Branch, Miller's attorney, and Corporal William H. Gantt, of the 179th.

Three Opportunity Families Given Chance for New Life

Unwed Mother Wants a Chance

The very great problem of a young unmarried mother is today's Opportunity No. 10.

Her name is Marie. Her own family is poor and cannot help her. She doesn't know where to turn.

Marie is the youngest child of parents who are now well in their sixties. When she was growing up and going to junior high school, her father suffered severe financial reverses and her mother was ill most of the time. Like little Topsy, Marie just "grewed" up.

She's pretty and shy. But she isn't trained for work and hasn't much education. She has quite a problem to overcome but the workers of the Family Welfare Society, which co-operates with The Constitution in presenting the Ten Opportunities each Christmas, believe she is worthwhile and will make a success of her life eventually.

Marie's needs for herself and baby right now are $20 per month. After her child was born, Marie thought her mother and father would never speak to her again. But they did.

This tragedy shocked both out of their own worries and they have tried hard to make Marie feel as happy as possible even though they do not have any money with which to help her. Marie's father earns only a few dollars a week on a commission job and actually he and his wife are often in great distress themselves.

However, the parents have agreed to aid Marie in every way they can. She has got to train

Groups Are 'Adopted' So They Can Rehabilitate Themselves.

By FRANK DRAKE

Security and chance in life were assured three of the city's neediest families yesterday when an individual and two different groups "adopted" families No. 3, No. 8 and No. 11.

But with all this, the need is greater this year than ever before, and there are still many, many families who face not only a cheerless Christmas but destitution for the rest of their lives unless other generous Atlantans come to their rescue now, while they still can rehabilitate themselves.

The 40 department managers of Rich's, Inc., got together to "adopt" Mrs. F. and her three children who are Opportunity No. 3. They are going to give this mother $40 a month while she recuperates her health and gets a job.

Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn, long an active worker for worthy charities, was touched by the story of "orphaned" 14-year-old Walter, which was told Sunday morning, and sent a $240 check to care for him.

The Service Group, composed of women of prominent Atlanta families, "adopted" the family of Mr. F. again this year. As Opportunity No. 11, the story of this man's struggle is told today in an adjoining column. Opportunity No. 10 also appears today.

But Opportunity No. 10 isn't the last to be told. No! There are scores of worthwhile families temporarily down by a problem such as sickness, death or desertion, and The Constitution hopes this year that the people of Atlanta will respond generously and Service Group Re-adopts Mr. F.

A year ago The Constitution told as one of its Ten Opportunities the story of Mr. F., a truck driver with a family who was badly injured in an automobile accident.

His need was great and the Service Group, an organization of prominent Atlanta women, promptly came to his rescue. The group gave $42 a month, which has kept this family from starving.

When Mr. F.'s story was first told last year, it looked as though he would be one of the first Opportunity families to win out and again earn the living for his family. But we reckoned without fate.

Mr. F.'s arm was badly crushed in the auto accident and during the last year he has had to have four operations on it. That should be enough tough luck for any man, but there is still more to come for Mr. F. That's why this year he is Opportunity No. 11.

His broken elbow has never healed properly and the doctors say he will have to have another operation on it soon. He can't use his arm at all and has had to stay in the hospital a great deal.

It may be several months more before he is able to use the arm enough to hold a job.

But, in the meantime, the Service Group has decided to "adopt" him again and help him through all his trouble. The members of the group all know that without their help Mrs. F. and her two sons, Joseph and Roy, would certainly starve.

Mrs. Frank M. Inman, president

MOORE CASE JURY HELD OVERNIGHT

Clayton Panel Will Resume
Deliberation of Charges This Morning.

A jury which failed to reach a verdict in the case of H. Grady Moore, one of five Clayton county commissioners indicted on charges of malpractice in office, was ordered locked up at 11 o'clock last night by Judge James C. Davis, of the Stone Mountain circuit.

The jurors will resume their deliberations at 9 o'clock this morning.

Taking the case at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the jury recessed at 7 o'clock for supper and reassembled at 8 o'clock. After failing to reach a decision the 12 men retired to a Jonesboro tourist camp for the night.

Moore, a prominent Conley merchant and former commission chairman, told the jury that political efforts to get rid of him date back many months. A civil suit seeking ouster proceedings against him was filed in September of 1938, but was not successful.

Trial of Moore opened yesterday morning and, after preliminary

Wrestler To Divorce Baba, He Declares

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Bob Gregory, 27, English wrestler, said tonight he would file suit after Christmas to divorce Baba, 22-year-old daughter of the white Rajah of Sarawak, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke.

"She left me early in June," said Gregory, "and when she wrote me first that she was financially unable to come home, I sent her money. She said she is going to stay in London until the war is over, driving an ambulance."

34 British Planes Downed, Nazis Claim

By M. K. WHITELEATHER.
BERLIN, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Speedy Nazi fighting planes shot down 34 of 44 attacking British bombing planes today in a giant sky battle off the naval base of Helgoland, Germans declared.

German scouting planes also were said to have sunk four British steamers and damaged three British warships in a bomb and machine-gun raid on a convoy yesterday.

(British spokesmen in London admitted the loss of four ships in the North Sea to Nazi bombers but made no mention of damage to warships. Late today the British air minister announced 12 German Messerschmidt fighters were shot down and seven British bombers "unaccounted for" in an air battle over Helgoland tonight.)

The huge air battle, extending over 20 miles of sea between the coast and Helgoland, took place within 20 miles of the mouth of the River Elbe, where the British asserted one of their submarines sank a 6,000-ton German cruiser Thursday. German official sources denied the British report.

Announcement of Nazi successes came as informed quarters asserted the scuttling of the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee at Montevideo will mark "the beginning of the new attacks by our fleet against England."

Unconfirmed reports said the sister ship of the Graf Spee, the Admiral Scheer, was loose in the South Atlantic and ready to continue raids against the Allies.

The air battle at Helgoland was apparently the largest aerial engagement of the present war.

As the fleet of British bombing planes swept in from the North Sea, squadrons of Messerschmidt

CIO'S 'OBLIGATION' TO REDS IS TOLD

Refused To Drop Case
Because of Communists,
NLRB Probers Hear.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(UP) House investigators of the National Labor Relations Board were told at a stormy session today that a CIO union in Cincinnati refused to drop a case pending before the NLRB because it was "obligated" to its Communist members.

Philip G. Phillips, regional NLRB director at Cincinnati, admitted sending a telegram to the board on December 9, 1937, but insisted what he actually meant was that the union considered it was obligated to all its members, "whether they be Communists, Republicans, Democrats or Fascists."

Phillips' telegram explaining the situation to his superiors stated that there was no doubt that the discharge was occasioned by union activities and that the company discovered the Communistic angle later.

The telegram continued, in part: "Have interviewed witness personally and he admits being active in Communist party stop Company is willing to have consent decree entered withdrawing recognition from company union as bargaining agency, etc., but insists we drop discharge cases in exchange stop Local CIO unwilling to do so claiming obligation to Communists such that they must proceed..."

"BALD MISSTATEMENT" DECLARES PUBLISHER

CINCINNATI, Dec. 18.—(AP)—W. F. Wiley, publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer, said in a statement tonight testimony by Regional NLRB Director Philip G. Phillips relating to the Enquirer was "filled with innuendo and bald misstatements of truth and fact."

Wiley asserted Phillips, who appeared today before the house committee investigating the Labor Board, made his statements "apparently for the purpose of a build-up with his Washington superiors."

RUSSIAN BOMBERS RAID FINN TOWN

One Is Shot Down, High Command Discloses;
Helsinki Still Quiet.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The Brewster Aeronautical Corporation said today that the navy had waived its claim to 44 fighting planes to enable Finland to buy them.

By THOMAS H. HAWKINS.
HELSINKI, Dec. 18.—(AP)—In the first real air activity since early this month, Russian war planes today bombed two suburbs of Viipuri and air-raid warnings were sounded in towns all along the Finnish gulf.

One plane was shot down outside of Viipuri, but the extent of damage—if any—near that Finnish center was not determined.

A squadron of 20 Soviet planes, mostly bombers, flew over the Viipuri suburbs most of the day, apparently on reconnoitering flights.

Three Warnings Sounded.

There were three air-raid warnings in Viipuri proper, but no planes attacked there.

Meanwhile, the Finnish high command announced desultory attacks by Russian troops were repulsed during the day in eastern central Finland and on the Karelian isthmus.

(Reports to Stockholm newspapers stated the Finns routed 17,000 Russians on the shore of Lake Kiantajarvi, east of Suomussalmi.

In Bergen, Norway, the annihilation of 300 Russians who were lured into a Finnish trap was reported in dispatches from the Petsamo front.)

The newspaper Uusi Suomi here said 11 planes were seen near

Argentina Ponders Nazi Crew's Future

One High Source Says They Will Be Held But That Officers Will Get 'Provisional' Freedom; Officials Confer on Next Move.

By HAROLD K. MILKS.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The twisted, smoking wreckage of the Nazi pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee lay half submerged in 25 feet of water outside Montevideo harbor tonight while the Argentine naval ministry extended her 1,039 officers and men "provisional hospitality."

The hungry and unshaven German sea fighters were quartered in the Argentine naval arsenal at Buenos Aires after an all-night voyage in two tugboats and a barge from the spot where their commander, Captain Hans Langsdorff, exploded and sank the raider late yesterday.

'WHERE'S HITLER?' VANGUARD YELLS ON DISEMBARKING

Stolid Scots Acclaim Till
They're Hoarse as Warplanes, Men O' War
Watch Over Welcome.

By DREW MIDDLETON.

SOMEWHERE IN GREAT BRITAIN, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Cheering, singing and shouting, "Where the hell is Hitler?" the vanguard of Canada's contribution to the empire's armies strode down transport gang-planks Sunday and Monday in a fog-shrouded Scottish port.

Stolid Scots yelled themselves hoarse and warplanes and the guns of men-o'-war kept watch.

Leading the first contingent of the Canadian active service force, which includes a hundred or so United States boys, was Major General Andrew G. L. McNaughton, grizzled veteran of the World War.

"Has To Be Done."

"We know this is not a glorious adventure, but a job that has to be done," General McNaughton told newsmen.

Officially greeting the Canadians at the dock were Anthony Eden, dominions secretary; T. A. Crerar, Canadian defense minister; Vincent Massey, the dominion's high commissioner in London, and Major General T. C. Riddell-Webster, deputy quartermaster general of the British expeditionary force.

Two thousand Scots formed an unofficial welcoming committee and split the Sunday quiet with their cheers as the identity of the troops became known.

Eden Speaks.

Speaking to the troops, Eden said, "It may be the struggle on which we are engaged may be long—it will certainly be tough—we all know that. But in the assurance of the unity of all peoples of the British commonwealth is the certainty of final victory."

The troops included a battalion of infantry from the Maritime Provinces and a hospital corps that had traveled 6,000 miles from British Columbia.

The first man ashore was Sergeant Bernard Gregson, of St. Stephen, N. B., who left his wife and two children to "take a whack at that fellow."

Stalwart, Tanned.

The stalwart, tanned men from overseas were like a breath of fresh air in the dirty Scotch port. They cheered the slim grey ships which conveyed them—and the sailors cheered back.

They cheered the people on the dock—and how the Scots cheered back!

"It's the Canadians coming," one woman shouted hysterically.

As the men poured down the

TRAFFIC COURT LAUDED BY CRAIN

Important Step To Solve Problem, He Says.

The establishment of a separate recorder's court to handle traffic offenders yesterday drew praise from Hurd J. Crain, chairman of the traffic safety committee of the Chamber of Commerce. In a letter to City Clerk Joe Richardson, Crain said:

"The Atlanta chamber, having been interested in the establishment of such a court for several years, feels that this will be an important step toward the solution of our rather difficult traffic problems."

The letter was written as the result of a unanimous vote by members of the committee, he added.

Woodruff Foundation Gives $15,000 for Joel Hurt Park

City Accepts Offer to Beautify Tract at Edgewood Avenue and Gilmer Street; $40,000 for Further Development Sought in Budget.

An offer of $15,000 cash for construction of an electrically lighted and operated fountain in Atlanta's downtown park was accepted by city council yesterday as that body unanimously voted to name the area the Joel Hurt Memorial park.

The fund was given the city by the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation through Dameron Black, treasurer. Joel Hurt park, announced by George Simons, general parks manager, include erection of a central fountain equipped with concealed lights of several colors. The site is at Edgewood avenue and Gilmer street.

$25,000 Asked. An appropriation of $40,000 for completion of the park is asked in the 1940 budget, he said, and would be used for landscaping, planting and construction of walkways. Final drawings of the proposed center have not yet been made.

The gift, which came as a surprise to most council members, was accepted by the parks committee in a special meeting. Their action was immediately approved by the council.

The offer was made in a letter to Mayor Hartsfield, which read in part:

"In the interest of civic advancement, and as a mark of respect to the memory of one of the foremost citizens in the history of Atlanta progress, the Emily and Ernest Woodruff Foundation desires to offer a gift of $15,000 for acceptance of the general council and mayor of the City of Atlanta for the beautification of the park now under construction at Edgewood avenue and Gilmer street.

"It is understood that the plan for the development of the park contemplates the erection of an electrically lighted fountain as the central theme of the park, and the establishment of walkways leading therefrom to the adjacent streets.

"In accepting the offer it is requested that the city council take such action as is necessary to cause this park to be designated as the Joel Hurt Memorial park, and to perpetuate its use for that purpose by such resolution or memorials as may be necessary."

Mayor Approves.

Following council's action, Mayor Hartsfield declared that the idea of a memorial was "a fine recognition of a man who helped make Atlanta the great city it is today."

"Mr. Hurt was one of the pioneer developers of the city," he asserted. "He built the Hurt building. He developed Edgewood avenue. He opened Inman Park as Atlanta's first high-class residential district. He was one of the prime movers in the widening of Courtland street."

"I remember that even when I was a small boy Mr. Hurt was one of Atlanta's finest citizens. Many's the time I rode on the first street car system of the city of which he was an organizer. It is especially fitting that this park, in the center of an area which he himself developed, should be named in honor of him."

Other Business. Other major business of the meeting included consideration of a resolution by which the city would be authorized to apply for WPA grants totaling $350,000, for street and sidewalk improvements.

It was offered by Councilman White, who said that the city would have to pay a fourth of the cost. The paper was referred to the finance committee for action.

A move to override the mayor's veto of a resolution raising salaries for six ranking police officers failed by a vote of 9 to 6. Opponents promised to bring it to the attention of the January budget commission.

Council passed an ordinance permitting the Georgia Power Company to substitute trackless trolleys for street cars on the Buckhead line, and busses for street cars on the West Peachtree line.

New Buses Sought. A resolution, introduced by Councilman George B. Lyle, and asking the power company to supply bus service in the East Lake district, also was passed.

Three petitions for retirement submitted by employees were approved. Those applying were William Patman, janitor at the Carnegie library; W. T. Harwell, milk inspector; and E. E. Allen, steamfitter with the school department.

An ordinance from the police committee, requiring that the new traffic court have at least one morning session and two afternoon sessions, was passed without debate. Time of the court, which will be opened January 2, will be set by Recorder John L. Cone.

HIGH COURT MOVES IN TEXAS DAM CASE

Calls for Arguments on Oklahoma's Right To Proceed in Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The supreme court took action today that may bring an early decision in a controversy involving the constitutionality of the government's flood control program.

It called for oral arguments January 29 on the right of Oklahoma to proceed in the supreme court in an effort to enjoin Secretary of War Woodruff from continuing with construction of the $4,000,000 Denison, Texas, dam. The state contended that 100,000 acres of rich land would be flooded and that the construction would violate state rights.

Lawyers said that the court might pass on the merits of the case when it decides whether to permit the complaint to be filed, but there was no assurance that this would be done.

The court also delivered a blow at personal corporations formed to reduce federal income taxes. Specifically, it sustained a deficiency tax for 1933 against George W. Griffiths, of Chicago, who said he formed an investment corporation, upon the advice of his attorney, to limit and postpone taxation on profit realized from the sale of securities.

BIG BROTHERS' BALL IS TOMORROW NIGHT

Money Raised To Give Atlanta's Neediest Yule Cheer.

If you have a heart—Or if you're only interested in movie stars—You'll come to the Big Brothers Ball tomorrow night.

Primary purpose of this annual affair is to raise money for the Christmas of Atlanta's needy. The dance's secondary aim is to show you a good time.

Drive Against Gloom. If you have a heart, you'll buy a ticket to help the Big Brothers in their seventh annual drive against Christmas gloom and misery.

If you're interested in movie stars, you'll come to see Evelyn Keyes, the Atlanta girl who wowed the critics with her portrayal of Suelleen O'Hara, "Scarlett's" unpleasant little sister.

Miss Keyes, who is spending the holidays in Atlanta, will be guest of honor at the ball and lead the grand march.

Music for the dance will be furnished by Harry Hearn and his orchestra. The dance will be held in the city auditorium.

Paper Sale a Success. Last Sunday, a volunteer army of Big Brothers sold special Big Brother editions of The Constitution on the streets of Atlanta.

Thousands of copies were bought by generous-hearted Atlantans. Money was raised to fill many Christmas baskets.

But, as Big Brother Chairman A. L. Belle Isle has pointed out, distress this year is more widespread than ever before.

Public and private agencies are groaning under the relief loads they must carry. Funds to support the unemployed are inadequate.

To Supply Yule Cheer. What money there is goes to keep life in the thin bodies of the poor. There is none left over for any sort of Christmas celebration.

That is where the Big Brothers step in. For one day at least, they make life happier for people less fortunate than themselves.

They will fill Christmas baskets with food and toys and distribute them to Atlanta's neediest cases. How many they distribute depends now on the ball. The paper sale is over. Tomorrow night is Atlanta's last chance to make this Christmas an occasion of Thanksgiving for her poor.

HIGH COURT MOVES IN TEXAS DAM CASE

Calls for Arguments on Oklahoma's Right To Proceed in Tribunal.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The supreme court took action today that may bring an early decision in a controversy involving the constitutionality of the government's flood control program.

It called for oral arguments January 29 on the right of Oklahoma to proceed in the supreme court in an effort to enjoin Secretary of War Woodruff from continuing with construction of the $4,000,000 Denison, Texas, dam. The state contended that 100,000 acres of rich land would be flooded and that the construction would violate state rights.

Lawyers said that the court might pass on the merits of the case when it decides whether to permit the complaint to be filed, but there was no assurance that this would be done.

The court also delivered a blow at personal corporations formed to reduce federal income taxes. Specifically, it sustained a deficiency tax for 1933 against George W. Griffiths, of Chicago, who said he formed an investment corporation, upon the advice of his attorney, to limit and postpone taxation on profit realized from the sale of securities.

Committee for Jackson Day To Be Awarded Certificates

Mementos Will Be Presented by Executive Group.

Certificates testifying to the loyal and valuable service of those who contribute time and energy to the success of the statewide Jackson Day dinner, January 8, in Atlanta, will be awarded by the Jackson Day dinner executive committee, Major Clark Howell, chairman of the dinner committee, announced yesterday.

The certificates will be awarded to members of the general committee who are outstanding in the organization for the Jackson Day dinner, Major Howell said.

Suitable for Framing.

The certificates will be suitable for framing and hanging on office walls, and will be highly valued mementos of the 1940 dinner. They will read: "This certifies that John Doe of the county of Fulton, Georgia, has rendered signal and valuable service to the Democratic party of Georgia by virtue of service as a member of the Fulton county committee in the 1940 Jackson Day dinner campaign. This recognition of such services is gratefully given this 9th day of January, 1940."

Selection of the chairman for the various county committees was proceeding rapidly Monday and the list is expected to be ready for announcement within a few days. Great care is being exercised to obtain the services from among the outstanding Democrats of each section, and appointment to the county committees will be a most coveted honor.

Major Howell expressed himself

ROBERT LAYTON DIES; RITES TODAY

Was Brother of Dobbs & Company Manager.

Robert Layton, brother of Buxton L. Layton, branch manager of the Atlanta office of Dobbs & Co., died yesterday morning at his home in New Orleans, friends here were notified.

Also surviving is a sister, Miss Evelyn Layton, of New Orleans. Funeral services will be conducted there this afternoon.

as highly gratified over the magnificent response of Georgia Democrats to the keynote of the 1940 dinner which is party harmony on Jackson Day.

Jackson Day dinner headquarters in the Henry Grady hotel speeded up preparations for the dinner Monday as the excitement of the "Gone With the Wind" festivities subsided, and began the long, hard pull to see that the party's message of harmony for Jackson Day is heard by every Democrat in the state.

Major Howell and his associates are confident, from the response so far, that the 1940 dinner will be the most brilliant occasion ever celebrated by the Democratic party in Georgia, and that Democrats from "Rebun Gap to Tybee Light" will rally wholeheartedly to the support of their historic party and its glorious traditions.

MRS. JACK HAYES, WASHINGTON, DIES

Former Atlantan To Be Buried in Arlington.

Mrs. Jack Hayes, former Atlantan, wife of the late Col. Jack Hayes, U. S. A., died Sunday at her home in Washington, D. C.

A well-known real estate dealer in the capital, Mrs. Hayes was influential in Washington affairs. She is survived by one son, Jack Hayes, Jr., of Washington, and by a cousin, Mrs. James Hardon Crawford, of Atlanta.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock this morning in Washington, with burial in Arlington.

At the City Hall

A resolution expressing sympathy for the family of "Uncle Matt" Leonard, veteran zookeeper at Grant Park, who died last week, was passed by the city council Monday by a rising vote. The document praised him for his work during the last 25 years, and deplored the fact that no man his equal would be found.

Other resolutions thanked Mayor Hartsfield for his work during the "Gone With the Wind" Festival, and commended the police and fire departments, the scouts, national guard, R. O. T. C. units, and State Highway Patrol for the manner in which they handled the huge crowds.

The city personnel board yesterday advertised for a milk inspector to fill a vacancy caused by retirement. The job, which pays $1,920 a year and automobile expenses, is open to any Atlantan holding a degree in sanitary or civil engineering and having experience in public health and milk control work.

The Constitution was praised in a Council resolution for a real estate promotional page published last Thursday's edition. Councilman John A. White, author of the paper, said that the page, with an "Atlanta From the Ashes" theme, was one of the finest examples of advertising he had ever seen.

Mayor Hartsfield was snowed under Monday by a deskful of unanswered letters, checks needing his signature, and papers scheduled to come before city council. Practically all routine work, he said, had been postponed because of the "Gone With the Wind" festival, and had to be cleaned up right away.

Publicity given to "Gone With the Wind" in papers throughout the country was called to the attention of city council members Monday afternoon. L. Glenn Dewberry, superintendent of the city hall, posted front pages of a dozen metropolitan newspapers on a large bulletin board which he placed in the council chamber. The papers were obtained by the mayor.

Mrs. J. Allen Couch, wife of the councilman from the third ward, is in Crawford W. Long Hospital, where she was taken Sunday after a fall at her home. Both legs were broken above the knees as she slipped on a rug while preparing to go to church.

A Christmas tree, lighted and covered with tinsel, held the spotlight at yesterday's city council meeting. While councilmen could find no presents at its base, all agreed that it made them feel there was a Santa Claus. The tree had been set up for Christmas parties which are to be given by a number of city departments.

BOARD AND BANKERS HOLD PARLEY TODAY

Group To Discuss Fulton County Finances.

Fulton county commissioners will get down to the serious business of shaping next year's financial set-up, when they meet with representatives of the four clearing house banks at the First National Bank at 10 o'clock this morning.

Chairman E. L. Almond said the meeting was called especially to discuss the county's finances. He said County Attorney Hughes Spalding and County Auditor James L. Respass also will attend. Following the session the commissioners are scheduled to appear before the grand jury which has been conducting a quiet investigation of county finances.

Lions Turn Santas Again for Calhoun School Children

At the Courthouse

Two of Fulton County's seven superior court judges turned up missing yesterday—being confined to their homes by illness. They were Judge E. E. Pomeroy of the criminal division and Judge Paul S. Etheridge of the civil division. Judge John D. Humphries took over Judge Pomeroy's duties in criminal court and sentenced Bill Armstrong, negro, to life imprisonment when the defendant pleaded guilty to the murder of Emanuel Glover on October 4, 1939. Attorney William Schley Howard represented the defendant.

Because William Watts, alias "White Child," a negro, had spent most of the last nine years in jail, Judge Virlyn B. Moore went easy on him yesterday when William entered a guilty plea to a nine-year-old indictment of larceny after trust. Judge Moore suspended a 1-to-3-year sentence. Watts was indicted in May, 1930, for the theft of 600 towels and 22 linen vests from a Railway Express warehouse.

More than 3,000 Fulton County voters already have signified their approval of the proposed $750,000 school bond issue for school purposes, Jere Wells, county superintendent, said yesterday. Approximately 1,000 more petitions are needed before the election can be called. Mr. Wells said he was more than pleased with the response as the card petitions have only been out one week. He said all high school students were given cards yesterday to take home to their parents. He emphasized this was done not to high-pressure the parents, but to make sure that every voter received one, as a large number of letters containing the cards were returned because of incorrect addresses.

Fulton County school children—23,000 of them—will begin their Christmas holidays at 11:30 a. m. Friday, Jere Wells, county school superintendent, said.

90-CENT CUBAN SUGAR MAY BE READMITTED

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18. (UP)—The State Department tonight announced a supplementary trade agreement with Cuba removing legal barriers to reinstatement of the 90-cent duty on Cuban sugar imports when, and if, President Roosevelt decides to terminate his order suspending sugar quotas. The agreement, signed today by Secretary of State Cordell Hull and the Cuban ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, provides for automatic resumption of the preferential 90-cent-per-hundred-weight duty on sugar should the President decide to restore quotas suspended when sugar prices mounted rapidly at outbreak of the European war.

SPEAKER ASSAILS POLITICAL FIGHTING IN RELIEF CRISIS

Welfare Board Chairman Agrees Situation Is Bad; Deplores Lack of Funds for County's Hungry.

Charging political issues have obscured the real relief problem in Fulton county, John L. Donovan, national representative of the Workers' Alliance, yesterday pictured to members of the Fulton County Board of Welfare a scene of slow starvation among thousands in Atlanta.

"There are 2,200 cases on direct relief who now receive a total of $2.13 a month," he declared.

"At the present time, it is estimated there are an additional 1,800 unemployed who receive

Welfare Board Holds 'Open to the Public' Meeting

Here are five members of the Fulton County Board of Public Welfare, caught by the camera at the meeting yesterday. In the photograph are Dean Paden, Gossett, Director Henry Mays, W. S. McLarin and Chairman W. E. Mitchell. The session was the first held since the board members voted to hold regular meetings open to the public. Story in adjoining column.

nothing but food supplies from the Surplus Foods Commodities corporation.

Cites Monthly Ration.

"The amount of food issued to them monthly usually consists of three pounds of flour, one-half bushel of apples, one pound of grits, and a pound of oatmeal."

"There are 12,973 applicants for special relief assistance whose cases haven't even been investigated. Judging by past experience, at least 65 or 70 per cent of these are eligible.

"In addition, there are 5,000 persons who have already been certified awaiting WPA jobs which are not there.

"The real issue in Fulton county has become obscured by this political haggling over the relief administration. The question of relief has become a political football and not a social and economic problem. The situation is serious and tragic," he said.

Board Trims Budget.

Donovan's address followed by a few minutes the action of the board which reduced the January direct relief appropriation from $12,500 to $10,000.

Responding to Donovan's talk W. E. Mitchell, chairman of the board, declared:

"Speaking for myself as a member of the board, I don't think you have exaggerated the situation and we have stated so publicly.

"You are correct in saying that the public doesn't know the real conditions. The issue has been clouded.

"We are not satisfied with the present administrative costs and we are doing everything we can to reduce them. But there is a limit to what we can do.

"I'll agree with Mr. Donovan when he says that we must develop public opinion to the real needs. I haven't any answer to the problem at this time. We can't spend what we haven't got.

"I don't see any hope of expanding public relief at this time."

Preceding the talk by Donovan, the board adopted a January budget of $45,205, of which $10,000 was for direct relief.

Relief Cut $2,500.

The direct relief appropriation, which was $2,500 beneath the sum set in the budget of Director Henry Mays, will be used in refunding a debt of $10,000 now outstanding against the board.

"The deficit should never have been given us, but now it is up to us to see that it is paid off," Chairman Mitchell told the board members.

The meeting was the first held since the board voted last month to hold regular sessions open to the press and the public. During the lengthy deliberations, the members voted full cooperation to a series of recommendations made in a recent independent audit of the department's books.

WARD WIGHT HEADS REAL ESTATE BOARD

Officers Are Elected at Annual Dinner of Group.

Ward Wight, president of Ward Wight & Company, last night unanimously was elected president for the ensuing year of the Atlanta Real Estate Board at its annual dinner and meeting at the Athletic club.

The retiring president, W. J. Hogan Jr., who has just concluded his second term, was presented with a handsome desk set, presentation, on behalf of the board, being made by Paul C. Maddox.

Among resolutions adopted was one commending newspapers of Atlanta for the cordial support and cooperation given to the real estate dealers of the city. "We regard the publicity on the activity of real estate carried in their columns from week to week as being among the very best assets the realty field has," said the resolution.

A resolution of sympathy was adopted on the death of Charles P. Rowland, Savannah, counselor of the state body, and one of the most prominent realtors in the state. His death occurred a few days ago.

Reports Read. Reports from the executive secretary, Mrs. Louise Peacock, from the retiring president, and from the finance committee were read. The secretary's report showed that the board had made 181 appraisals of property the past year, the property valued at a total of $2,728,474.

Officers elected to serve with the new president were: Vice presidents, Forrest Adair Jr., Ed M. Chapman Sr., and J. M. Garner; treasurer, S. D. Wall; secretary, A. H. Sturges; directors for three years, Jack Adair, Morris Ewing, Ward Wight. The nominating committee was G. M. Stout, chairman; Frank C. Owens, Morris Ewing, A. B. Cates and Paul C. Maddox.

Mr. Wight, the new president, has been in the realty business since 1911. In 1922 he served a term as president of the local board, and some 10 years ago

AGED WOMAN CATCHES BURGLARY SUSPECT

ST. PAUL, Dec. 18.—(P)—William Janko, 34, was in jail today, a suspect in several burglaries and attack cases, because an 86-year-old woman, Mrs. Mary Aslon, did not scare easily.

When police arrived they found a neighbor, R. M. Hendricks, sitting on Janko in Mrs. Aslon's kitchen. She told officers she caught Janko trying to break in her front door.

She said she got an empty revolver and shook it at Janko, whereupon he ran around to the back door and she ran to Hendricks' house and obtained help.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY EXPECTED TO CONTINUE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(P)—The Bureau of Agricultural Economics declared today that maintenance of increased industrial activity as the year draws to a close assured continued strength in domestic consumer demand into early 1940.

The European war is not expected to increase exports of farm products during the next few months, the report said, but increased foreign purchases of industrial products may be a strong factor in creating the domestic demand.

MOORE CASE JURY IS HELD OVERNIGHT

Legal skirmishes followed the same pattern of evidence, which has brought convictions on three out of the five counts against Commissioners F. C. Gargile and E. L. Stephens, W. S. Lee and Dr. J. R. Wallace, remaining two indicted officials, will be called to trial today.

Homer Allen and A. L. Armistead, representing Moore, filed for demurrer on the indictment as court opened. When Judge James C. Davis denied the petition, they entered a plea in abatement on grounds that two of the grand jurors signing the charges were among the plaintiffs in the 1938 civil suit. Solicitor Roy C. Leathers and John Poole, his associate counsel, demurred on this plea and were sustained.

Witnesses called during the morning and afternoon by the state were the same as have appeared in the previous trials. W. H. Reynolds, former clerk of the commission, and Miss A. L. Rutherford, present clerk, both attested to the authenticity of warrants issued to former Sheriff Adamson and Deputy Sheriff Dickson and the board's permission to allow the sheriff to collect a percentage of tax fee, fas. his office collected. These two charges comprised counts one and two of the indictment.

E. I. Clark, a clerk in the Conley store of Mr. Moore, and Horace Moore, a relative of the commissioner, testified as to certain supplies they sold the county as charged in the third and fourth counts, and in the fifth count which charged the body with buying supplies from Commissioner Moore.

Taking the stand himself, Moore said he, and the commission, were unaware that any of the acts they allegedly committed were illegal and that any practices of the commission were stopped as soon as the legality was questioned.

Moore was chairman of the Clayton commission during 1936 when the acts alleged to be malpractice were committed. He was succeeded this year by Mr. Gargile, already found guilty on the first, second and fifth counts.

JAMES M. COX ASSERTS JOURNAL 'TO REMAIN FREE'

Roosevelt Congratulates
'Fellow Georgian'; List of Executives Made Public by New Management.

In his first statement as new owner of the Atlanta Journal, former Governor James M. Cox, of Ohio, declared yesterday the 57-year-old newspaper "will remain a free newspaper, above coercion by any interest."

Prominently displayed near the publisher's statement in yesterday's editions was a photographic reproduction of a congratulatory telegram from President Roosevelt, who was the Democratic vice presidential nominee in 1920 when Cox was the party's standard-bearer.

This message said:
"Accept my hearty congratulations as you enlarge your activities and broaden the field of your influence. Just short of a score of years ago you and I were together fighting side by side. In the years that have intervened we have each been active in widely different fields. Now, happily, I feel that we are brought closer by the bond of union which your entry into my other state—Georgia—symbolizes. All success to you, as an old friend and now as a fellow Georgian."

Cash Transaction.
Concerning last week's transaction which brought him the Journal, and its radio station WSB, Cox said:

"In my first approach to the readers of this paper, let a very vital thing be understood. The purchase of the Journal is not a gamble or a speculation. It is a transaction in cash—cash, the product of my labor, savings and financial credit. My only investment associates are the members of my immediate family. My reason for this very personal reference is to make it clear to all that the Journal will remain a free newspaper."

The paper—which is taking over some features of the Atlanta Georgian—American, a competitor which ceased publication Sunday—also made public a list of executives.

John Paschall became editor and John A. Brice, president. They are members of the new board of directors along with the following:

James M. Cox, chairman of the board.
James M. Cox Jr., vice-chairman.
George C. Biggers, executive vice president and general manager.

Dan J. Mahoney, vice president.
Horace Powell, circulation director.
Cox Jr.'s general manager of the Dayton (Ohio) News, and Mahoney is general manager of the Miami (Fla.) News.

William Cole Jones continues as associate editor. Headley Wilcox, formerly assistant secretary of the Georgian-American, becomes secretary and treasurer of the Atlanta Journal Company, succeeding the late J. L. Williford.
James R. Brumby, advertising manager, becomes advertising director.

Pope Managing Editor
J. S. Pope will be managing editor. He was formerly assistant managing editor. Wright Bryan continues as city editor.

Brice was formerly vice president and general manager; Biggers business manager, and Paschall associate editor and managing editor. Powell has been circulation director for several years.

Paschall came to the Journal in 1901, working without pay for the experience and awaiting an opening on the staff, which soon developed. He worked all the editorial assignments, served as city editor and was promoted to managing editor in 1917.

As an additional part of the public statement the former Governor of Ohio said:

"In candor, let me assert at the outset that there is not a newspaper in this country, except the Atlanta Journal, that I would be interested in acquiring. Through many years it has held my interest and admiration as a rugged, honest voice of the south, with a tradition as honorable as that of any member of the American press. It is privileged to operate in a city noted for its culture and progressiveness, and in a state with the tranquil spirit born of a pure American citizenship. It is centered in an agricultural empire which could feed and clothe half the people of the United States. The setting is sufficient to fire the imagination of any man. To labor in such a field is an inspiring privilege."

JOURNAL-GEORGIAN BILL OF SALE FILED

Deed Covers Transfer of Building, Machinery and Other Equipment.

Details through which the Atlanta Journal Company of Georgia took title to the Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American on Saturday were revealed yesterday when a warranty deed and bill of sale in the transaction were filed for record in the office of the clerk of Fulton superior court by the Atlanta Title and Trust Company. However, no purchase price was listed.

The deed set out that $100 and other valuable considerations were given in payment. Federal revenue stamps on the deed showed the consideration to be $180,000. The instrument sets out that the sales cover land, building, machinery and other equipment in fee simple, subject to a loan deed originally executed by the Georgian Company to the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This loan deed, dated November 25, 1924, shows that it has been reduced from $175,000 to $80,000.

The bill of sale did not carry any revenue stamps, listing only $100 and other considerations. This transfer of title gives to the purchaser all rights to the Georgian circulation lists, goodwill, names of the two papers, furniture, office fixtures and automotive equipment.

T. J. White, vice president of Hearst Consolidated, signed both instruments.

JAPANESE TO LIFT BAN AGAINST U.S. SHIPS ON YANGTZE

Reopening of River in Lower China Expected To Ease Way for Signing New Commercial Pact.

TOKYO, Dec. 18.—(P)—Japan today announced plans to re-open to third powers the lower part of China's Yangtze river in a move interpreted as removing a major obstacle to conclusion of a new commercial treaty with the United States.

The Yangtze, central China's main trade artery which opens up the greater part of China proper to foreign commerce, was closed to occidental traffic by the Japanese in August, 1937, one month after outbreak of Japanese-Chinese hostilities.

Some Restrictions.
A foreign office communique stated today the Japanese forces in China "have decided to make preparations with a view to lifting the ban on navigation in the Yangtze from Nanking downward under certain restrictions for the maintenance of peace and order and for military operations."

The decision was communicated to United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew by Foreign Minister Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura in a half-hour conference, their third to settle outstanding Japanese-American differences. It led to apparent optimism on both sides that the way now was cleared for a new Japanese-American commercial treaty.

Denounced by U. S.
The present agreement, made in 1911 and denounced by the United States last July 26, will expire on January 26. The United States has held that any new agreement would depend upon settlement of differences with Japan.

The new decision was regarded as a victory of the foreign office over the army, which has contended that military necessity demanded closing of the river and any decision to re-open it should be made by a new government in China.

The United States has demanded some concrete evidence that American rights and interests would not be interfered with in the future, and Foreign Minister Nomura's statement to Grew was interpreted as an indication that Japan was attempting to meet these demands.

Re-opening of the river was regarded as the most important concession Japan could make as an assurance that third power rights in China would be respected.

HULL DOUBTS JAPAN HAS SINCERE INTENTIONS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Japan's past sincerity in her dealings with the United States may rise to haunt consideration by officials here of the new Japanese appeasement policy toward this country, Secretary of State Cordell Hull indicated today.

In a press conference, Hull cast considerable doubt on the value, in his opinion, of the latest appeasement move—a decision by the Japanese government to re-open the Yangtze river in China to foreign commercial vessels. In response to questions, Hull would not concede any positive belief on his part that the river will be opened. He said that as he got the idea from American diplomatic officials at Tokyo and Shanghai the Japanese action was an expression of intention. He was just hoping, as he put it, that the river will be reopened.

'WAR' IS DECLARED ON YULE ACCIDENTS

All Leaves Cancelled for State Troopers.

Local law enforcement officers and state troopers are making every effort to keep the holiday traffic accident toll at a minimum. Major Lon Sullivan, commissioner of the Department of Public Safety, said yesterday all leaves of absence have been cancelled for troopers and that highways will be patrolled with unusual diligence day and night.

"If we have the same record this Christmas week that we had in 1937, at least 38 men, women and children will be killed, and 1,330 injured," declared Major Sullivan. "And if the 1938 experience is repeated, 20 persons must be killed and 700 injured."

The commissioner asked drivers and pedestrians to drive and walk with unusual care, so that "we will not turn our happy Christmas season into one of tragedy and grief."

The Crippled Graf Spee Just Before She Was Scuttled

One of the prides of the German navy, the pocket battleship Graf Spee rides at anchor while her commander awaits orders from Hitler on his next move. The orders came through Sunday and she was sent to the bottom following an explosion, rather than have her interned.

ing the Montevideo waterfront, the ship was blown up at sundown yesterday in a "suicide maneuver" which her commander said today must have surprised the enemy.

Apparently satisfied with the work of his crew last night, Captain Langsdorff and his men settled down smilingly today at the Argentine naval arsenal for a sojourn of indeterminate length.

At Hyde Park President Roosevelt tonight scheduled a special cabinet meeting for tomorrow in Washington at which he is expected to obtain the views of his subordinates regarding the scuttling of the Graf Spee and the earlier battle between the German ship and British cruisers.

Protest Possible.

The engagement occurred within the "security zone" outlined by American republics and it presumably could draw a protest from this government.

Behind two sand banks off Montevideo today lay the British cruisers Ajax, Cumberland and Achilles, which had kept up their vigil lest the Graf Spee venture to sea.

Tonight the question of whether the captain and his officers would be interned by Argentina remained to be settled. It was apparent they went there in the hope they would be treated as shipwrecked sailors rather than belligerents.

Lot Is Discussed.

One high official said the crew would be interned but the German officers might be granted their freedom if they would pledge personally not to participate further in the war.

The German ambassador to Argentina, Edmund von Thiermann, engaged with the Argentine naval minister, Rear Admiral Leon Scasso, in a discussion of the lot of the Graf Spee's crew.

Close inspection showed the 10,000-ton vessel is little more than a steel shell, its inside apparently blasted by explosives and fire. The exterior about the control tower is torn and twisted by the powerful blasts.

Almost directly in the route up the river toward Buenos Aires, the Graf Spee lies listed heavily to the right, with her nose pointed seaworthy.

Anchors Dropped.
Both her anchors are dropped, attesting the careful attention the crew gave to the location of the ship before abandoning her.

From the bow aft as far as the control tower the Graf Spee, except for her blackened hull and smoke and flames, looks exactly as I saw her yesterday in Montevideo harbor.

Even the patch welded over the hole in the port bow, where a British shell had burst, was unscathed.

The forward turret, with its three 11-inch guns, appeared from the outside to be undamaged, although it was directly above the forward magazines from which one or two of the most severe explosions came.

An Uruguayan coast guard vessel was anchored near the Graf Spee to keep off all craft. A new buoy warned away shipping. As our tug circled the Graf Spee, a twin-motored Argentine naval plane patrolled the air above.

Lappeenranta, 35 miles northwest of Viipuri, for 45 minutes, but they dropped no bombs.

Two warnings were sounded at Porvoo, 40 miles east of Helsinki, also at Kerava, north of Helsinki, indicating the Soviet airmen might have been seeking the capital.

Helsinki remained quiet. (Norwegian reports from northern Finland received at Copenhagen told how a patrol of nine Finnish soldiers hidden in the forest killed 700

WITH THE CANADIAN ACTIVE SERVICE FORCE AT SEA, Dec. 18.—(P)—(Delayed by Censor)—In the heavy Atlantic fog one of the transports in this group strayed from the convoy and two destroyers vanished astern to scout for the absentee.

A day went by with no word. This morning there were specks on the horizon as the convoy ran at slow speed.

Then this message came from the warship in charge of the convoy, sent in straight Morse code for every Morse reader to understand:

"Read Luke 15:6."
"There was a rush to ships' Bibles to find a verse saying: 'Rejoice with me; for I have found my sheep which was lost.'"

Russians on a highway. It was explained the great Russian losses resulted from the fact they were in direct line of Finnish fire from machine guns and field artillery.

The night Finnish communique claimed a total of 36 Soviet tanks destroyed during the day. A Russian attack was repulsed with the loss of 26 tanks on a 12-mile front on the isthmus between Muolajärvi and Valkjärvi, the communique said. At Taipale lake, it added, where the Russians have been assaulting Finnish positions without success for two weeks, an attack in force was stopped by artillery fire and five tanks were destroyed.

Attack Repulsed.
A Russian attack was repulsed with the loss of 26 tanks on a 12-mile front on the isthmus between Muolajärvi and Valkjärvi, the communique said. At Taipale lake, it added, where the Russians have been assaulting Finnish positions without success for two weeks, an attack in force was stopped by artillery fire and five tanks were destroyed.

(At Moscow, Russian military headquarters at the Leningrad area issued the following communique tonight: "In the Murmansk direction Soviet troops occupied the town of Pitkajärvi, 85 kilometers south of Petsamo. In other directions there were small encounters of reconnoitering units; at Karelian isthmus, intensive artillery duel. "Air action took place in some districts. A number of warships of the Baltic fleet shelled coastal batteries of the Björkö district." The Finns claimed they destroyed two more tanks as activity increased in the Loimila district, 19 miles from the frontier and about 25 miles north of Lake Ladoga, and three near Suomussalmi, less than 10 miles from the Russian border in east central Finland. They reported turning back Russian attacks at Koirioja (north of Lake Ladoga) Syskyjärvi and Lake Aglajärvi.

Shore batteries continued fire against Soviet artillery on the Ladoga coast and the Finnish command reported the only enemy warships seen were destroyers cruising in the Gulf of Finland.

Finnish Soldiers Enter Norway.
COPENHAGEN, Dec. 18.—(P)—Exhausted Finnish soldiers were reported today to be crossing the border into Norway from northern Finland.

A Norwegian telegraph agency report from Svanvik, Norwegian town near the Finnish frontier, said that 40 had been disarmed and interned.

They asserted that small Finnish patrols equipped with light

Master Says The Graf Spee Disguised Self

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Dec. 18.—(P)—Captain Hans Langsdorff told the Associated Press today that the raider Graf Spee, while preying on Allied merchant shipping, once disguised herself as the British battle cruiser Renown.

On this occasion, the German commander said, the pocket battleship went to the length of adding an artificial stack and changing her superstructure in the most obvious details to resemble the 32,000-ton British warship.

The Graf Spee roved both the North and South Atlantic, he added, and even made a foray into the Indian Ocean in search of enemy merchant vessels.

"Of course, in these wanderings we were disguised a bit."

He explained that camouflage frequently was used to make the pocket battleship's enemies mistake her for one of her sister ships, the Deutschland or the Admiral Scheer.

machine guns and light field guns had harassed the Russian advance, one patrol of nine men having surprised a Russian column in the woods and killed 70.

Neutral Patrol Goes Into Action.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18.—The Herald said tonight that activities of the U. S. neutrality patrol at Key West and Charleston, S. C., had led to the belief that British warships were off the Florida coast waiting to pounce on the 32,565-ton German liner Columbus when it leaves territorial waters.

The Columbus left Vera Cruz, Mexico last week. One of Germany's largest merchant ships, the vessel was on a cruise when the war started, discharged several hundred American passengers at Havana and fled to Mexican waters. The passengers were transported to Miami by coastwise ships and entrained here for their northern homes.

Nazi Master Says Sub Attacked Him

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 18.—(P)—The master of the German ship Pinnau, 1,200 tons, arriving at the Swedish port of Fredrikssund Monday, said a submarine, presumably of Soviet Russian nationality, fired 35 shells at his vessel in the Gulf of Bothnia.

The ship, carrying coal, reached port slightly damaged. The master made a report to the German embassy in Stockholm.

Crewmen said they believed the submarine was part of the Soviet fleet which is attempting to blockade Finland.

General Claims 7,000 Reds Killed

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, Dec. 18.—(UP)—General Kurt Vallenius, commander of the Finnish armies in central Finland, tonight told newspaper correspondents at the front that 7,000 Russian troops were "completely destroyed" today west of Suomussalmi near the Soviet frontier.

The woman correspondent of the newspaper Dagens Nyheter, Miss Barbro Alving, said the 7,000 Soviet troops comprising three regiments were defeated by a Finnish force only one-third their size in bitter fighting to the west of Suomussalmi.

They asserted that small Finnish patrols equipped with light

Another Nazi Cruiser Torpedoed by British U-Boat

The British submarine Ursula fought a lone and valiant battle against a German squadron in the North Sea, and when the smoke of battle cleared, the 6,000-ton cruiser Leipzig, pictured above, had been struck by a torpedo and another cruiser had been hit. The submarine escaped undamaged after a hectic fight.

pursuit ships, Germany's fastest fighting planes, rose to meet them, Germans said.

The Nazis said their fighting planes dispersed the oncoming bombing fleet and soon the battle was sprawled out in the sky in individual combats from Helgoland to the coast of Germany.

As the diving, darting planes approached the shore, anti-aircraft batteries started shooting at the British ships.

There was no indication of how long the battle lasted, but tonight Germans said the wreckage of many British planes was being washed up on shore. Two British plane crews were reported captured.

Only two German planes were reported lost. Their crews were said to have escaped by parachute.

London sources announced three British ships were lost and a fourth was abandoned in a sinking condition as the result of large-scale German air raids on North Sea shipping involving at least 13 ships last night and early today.

GRACEWOOD FIRE TAKES FIVE LIVES

Home for Mental Defectives' Building, Termed 'Fire Trap,' Destroyed.

AUGUSTA, Ga., Dec. 18.—(AP)—A fire early today raked a frame farm building officially branded a "fire-trap" and killed five youths assigned to the Georgia School for Mental Defectives.

Two others of 24 sleeping in the dormitory were injured severely. The remaining 17 were moved safely from the building.

Dr. E. H. Schwall, superintendent, said something awoke him, he noticed a light in the dormitory a short distance from his home, "and the next moment the whole place was in flames."

Rivers' Statement.
(In Atlanta, Governor Rivers expressed "deep sympathy" for the families of the dead, and declared "I have been telling the people of this state all along that we have been running a race with just such a catastrophe as this.")

Members of the Georgia house economy investigating committee, at the last session of the legislature, called attention to the Gracewood buildings and described them as "fire-traps." A building to replace the structure burned today already was near completion.

The victims of the fire were Floyd Lytle, 15, an adopted son of Graves Whitmore, of Savannah; Hoyt Cook, 15, of Atlanta; William Youmans, 22, of Valdosta; Curtis Sargeant, 17, of Gainesville; and Tobie Curree Creech Jr., of Augusta.

Critically injured were Nathaniel Peters and William McMichael, both taken to a hospital here for treatment.

Origin of Fire.
Dr. Schwall said it appeared the fire started in a laundry for the school. Once an outbuilding on a farm, the structure was converted into a dormitory several years ago when inmates of the school began operating a dairy and farm plant to help support the institution.

Other buildings of Gracewood, housing upward of 300 persons, are about two miles from the fire scene.

T. W. Garland, dormitory attendant, said one of the boys awakened him when the fire started. He hustled all except the five dead and the two injured out of the building, remaining so long that he was forced to jump to safety himself and was injured slightly.

Dr. Schwall expressed a belief the five boys were suffocated before the flames reached their bodies.

20 Years Old.
The Gracewood school was founded about 20 years ago to separate children who respond to simple treatment from those who required the care of institutions such as the State Hospital at Milledgeville. Recently the capacity of the school was doubled by construction of buildings with WPA aid.

Governor Rivers said a building program "being pressed to completion" by his administration would take care of the present situation in the state's charitable institutions, but would not be adequate to care for future expansion.

"The wonder is that something similar has not occurred at Milledgeville or the other charitable institutions," he said. "But I want to assure the people of this state that we are doing all we can to remedy the situation, as far as this administration is able."

One a Barn.
Director Braswell Dean, of the State Department of Public Welfare, deploring the tragedy "with sincerity and regret," said the wooden dormitory was originally a barn, but that because of inadequate housing facilities, it had been renovated several years ago and maintained for institutional care of a group of the children.

In order to provide adequate housing facilities for the institution, he said, a $128,000 building program is now under way, with the state furnishing $60,000 of the cost, and the remainder being supplied by WPA.

Heywood Broun, Columnist, Succumbs to Pneumonia at 51

Veteran Liberal Writer Began Career in 1908 at New York.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Heywood Broun, the newspaperman-celebrity who was a match for Heywood Broun the legend, died today after a few days' illness.

At 51, Broun, president of the American Newspaper Guild, was personally known to thousands of the great and near great in New York and Washington and to thousands of others through his daily newspaper column "It Seems to Me."

Champions Many Causes.
A mountainous man, who was more than six feet tall and weighed 250 pounds, he championed a continual series of social and political causes in his column, in magazine articles, on the rostrum, in picket lines and however else his fertile mind could devise.

Although his writing turned more and more serious with the passing of the years, he never forgot the "trifling subject, the light touch, which was his true métier."

One of his last columns, characteristically, dealt in a good natured way with the advice of his physician to seek rest in Florida.

Wrote Column 12 Years.
Until Thursday he had for 18 years been a columnist for the New York World, the Telegram, the World-Telegram and syndicate outlets. On Friday last he joined the New York Post, which printed one column, his last, just before Broun was taken to the hospital.

A severe cold developed into pneumonia and the illness induced a heart attack. For a time he seemed to rally, but early today his condition became worse and at 9:50 a. m. he died. The last rites of the Roman Catholic church, which he joined last summer, were administered Friday morning. A solemn high mass of Requiem will be celebrated Wednesday morning in St. Patrick's cathedral.

Unconscious 24 Hours.
At the hospital when Broun died was his second wife, the former Connie Madison; his son, Heywood Hale Broun, a senior at institutions, but would not be adequate to care for future expansion.

"The wonder is that something similar has not occurred at Milledgeville or the other charitable institutions," he said. "But I want to assure the people of this state that we are doing all we can to remedy the situation, as far as this administration is able."

Director Braswell Dean, of the State Department of Public Welfare, deploring the tragedy "with sincerity and regret," said the wooden dormitory was originally a barn, but that because of inadequate housing facilities, it had been renovated several years ago and maintained for institutional care of a group of the children.

HEYWOOD BROUN.

Swarthmore; his brother Irving and his personal physician, Dr. Alvin L. Barach. Dr. Barach said Broun was unconscious 24 hours before he died and that death was due to influenza-bronchial pneumonia, complicated by heart trouble.

For nearly two decades, Broun had been a major personage in New York. He was one celebrity who never let down the eager celebrity-hunter. His carelessness of attire became almost a trademark and his huge, rambling bulk made him a magnet for the eye in any crowd.

Broun was proud of being a newspaperman and used to say that "most of us on papers, for all our swagger, are at least five and a half times too humble."

He was a founder of the American Newspaper Guild, was elected its first president in 1933 and re-elected unanimously at every convention since. He devoted himself tirelessly to the movement and was a motivating force in its growth.

Broun was a native of Brooklyn and studied at Harvard before entering newspaper work in 1908 as a reporter on the New York Morning Telegraph.

Mayor La Guardia, informed of his death, said: "I have lost a close personal friend. He was a clear thinker and a courageous writer, a rare combination in these days."

Governor Herbert H. Lehman said: "His death is a great loss, not only to journalism, but to the public as a whole."

Informed of Broun's death, Postmaster General James A. Farley said he was "deeply shocked."

George Backer, publisher of the New York Post, said "Heywood Broun was moved by injustice anywhere in the world."

Carl Randau, president of the New York Newspaper Guild, said: "Heywood Broun's death leaves a permanent void in journalism and the trade union world. His fellow workers on the nation's newspapers will always be indebted to him for his efforts, at great personal sacrifice, to help them improve their conditions. The American Newspaper Guild is his monument."

ATLANTAN WRITES 'HEIRLOOM' VOLUME

Mrs. J. Powell Wardlaw Describes Virginia's Antiques in Book.

A new book, "The Old and the Quaint in Virginia," which deals in the romance of heirlooms and antiques so inseparably a part of American colonial life, has just been completed by a former Georgian, Mrs. J. Powell Wardlaw of Atlanta and Savannah.

Writing under the name of Georgia Dickinson Wardlaw, the book presents an unusual angle on the history and customs of the Old Dominion state. The book appeals to the collector as well as the dealer in antiques.

The author, a native of Savannah, is the daughter of the late Gardner Edward Dickinson, of that city, and Mrs. Georgia Gaston Howell, of Gainesville. Upon the death of her father, Mrs. Wardlaw came to Atlanta from Savannah, and was educated in private schools and by tutors. She was graduated from Woodberry Hall, and was class historian during her senior year.

Her husband, J. Powell Wardlaw, is a former Atlantan. They have one child, 11-year-old Robin Wardlaw, to whom the book is dedicated.

DROUTH RETARDING GEORGIA FARMERS

Soil Is Too Dry To Permit Plowing.

Lack of rain and the unseasonably warm weather is retarding the Georgia farmers' winter farming, the state department of agriculture revealed yesterday.

The dry soil has been unfit for ploughing and the planting of winter grains, thus necessarily retarding the spring harvesting of crops which must be cleared away for the planting of cotton, it was announced.

Most farmers are taking a vacation, awaiting a rain before attempting to plough.

GOOD MORNING

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

FIFTEEN PER CENT.
Everyone who has to pay income tax, state and federal, is allowed 15 per cent reduction for gifts to churches or other benevolences. It is interesting to hear people remark every year that they would have given more if they had taken the time to figure up their income in time and had known just what amount they might have given and thus claimed this reduction. One may say that everybody should take the time to ascertain this fact. Indeed, one may go further and express the wish that everyone would think of the stewardship of life in such definite loyalty to the will of God as to qualify fully for this reduction, not merely to be within the provision made by the law, but in joyful acknowledgement of the goodness and mercy of the Lord.

A few days ago a man said to me, "I am ashamed to admit it, but I have never given enough to claim this full percentage of reduction in my income tax. I am rebuked by the fact that the law contemplates the right of people to make these gifts, and I know the Bible teaches the stewardship of all that God entrusts to us, and still I go on withholding from Him, and paying money to the government that even the government allows me to give to my church and to other worthy forms of benevolence."

If the people who read this column would stop for a moment and consider their blessings, how God has blessed them with life itself, with health, with talents, with inheritances, with intelligence, with possessions of one sort and another, they would quickly claim the privilege of giving the full amount of exemption in their income taxes, giving such percentage to the many worthy causes that are trying to serve humanity to the glory of God.

And as much as the government needs money with which to carry on its vital services, it is my opinion that everybody in governmental office today would gladly see our citizens claim this exemption from their income taxes, feeling, as I believe they would, that the country is bound to be better off when everyone who can gives of his or her own free will to the work of the Lord. I know that the friends who help me make out my income tax every year always gladly acknowledge the deductions for gifts to my church and to other benevolences.

Think what it would mean to the work of our churches if every member of every church in Georgia who is subject to income taxes would give the full percentage allowed for contributions! Every interest would be set forward and all the life of our state and nation and the world would be immeasurably strengthened. Strengthened. Best of all, God would be glorified. Remember how the Lord Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Selah.

Your dollar or your dime will help build up enough to really give one of the neediest but most deserving families a chance to become self-supporting. Every penny is as needed as it is welcome!

Read the Ten Opportunity stories every day in The Constitution between now and Christmas. Give a little, and on Christmas morning enjoy from your head to your toes that good feeling that comes with the knowledge you will be helping a struggling mother or father all during 1940!

"I read with much interest each morning of the fine work The Constitution is endeavoring to do for its needy families," wrote Mrs. Glenn.

"Opportunity No. 8 especially appealed to me and I should like to have the privilege of helping Walter carry on until his mother is again able to be at her work," she said.

Walter, you remember, is the boy whose mother fell down a flight of concrete steps and broke her hip. Walter had no place to stay until his mother recovered but Mrs. Glenn has generously assured him of safety until the mother is well.

Rich's department managers took under their wing Mrs. F. and Mary, 10; Susan, 8, and Betty, 6. Joe Asher, Miss Catherine Rice and Elmer Ething, merchandise managers at this department store, organized the Rich's group. Every manager from the top on through the store agreed to contribute $1 a month each to help Mrs. F. keep her little family together now that her husband is dead and she is the sole wage earner.

When she gets well, she will get a job and make the living for her family herself.

The Constitution takes this opportunity to thank Mrs. Glenn, the Rich's department managers, and the Service Group for availing themselves of the opportunity for Christmas giving in the proper way—so that it will help rehabilitate worthwhile families.

MAN COLLAPSES IN TAXI OFFICE

M. W. Stocker Is in Critical Condition.

M. W. Stocker, 50, of 1116 Piedmont avenue, an employee in the cashier's office of the Black and White Cab Company, collapsed yesterday afternoon while walking from the basement of the building to the floor above and was taken to Grady hospital in a critical condition.

Stocker was carrying a bag of money said to contain between $600 and $700 and investigating officers have been unable to determine whether he was slugged in an attempted robbery or suffered a heart attack and struck his head in falling.

Mrs. S. J. Coy, another employee of the company, saw him just as he was falling but reported she did not see anyone near him. The money was recovered. Attendants at Grady said last night he had little chance to recover.

EXPECT IMPORTANT ADDRESS BY POPE

Vatican Circles Hint Pius XII Will Discuss War at Yule Audience.

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 18.—(P) Vatican circles tonight said Pope Pius XII was planning to deliver an important address, probably dealing with the war, when he receives the College of Cardinals in customary Christmas Eve audience.

On this occasion it is usual for the dean of the Sacred College, Gennaro, Cardinal Granito Pignatelli de Belmonte, to offer the pontiff holiday greetings on behalf of his colleagues.

The Holy Father's reply this year will be of unusual significance, prelates said. Probably it will be published in full in a special edition of the Observatore Romano, the Vatican organ, the same night.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 18.—(P)—Chief Eugene Paris, middle-weight boxer, filed suit for divorce today, declaring his married life had been "just one fight after another."

of the group, who was recently rejected to that office to serve through 1940, announced that these women want to keep on helping the truck driver and his family until they are back on their feet.

"Why, we would never think of deserting this poor man while he needs our aid," Mrs. Inman said. The Constitution, which annually presents the city's neediest and most deserving families as the Ten Opportunities, salutes the Service Group and its officers and members!

This group was organized in 1932 for the sole purpose of caring for one of the Ten Opportunity families. Every year since then the group has "adopted" one or more of the families and in addition has broadened its charity work tremendously.

Mr. F. is the first one of the Service Group's families who has ever had to have help the second year. That is what Mrs. Inman pointed out to the members of the organization the other day in making her annual report. It is a fact of which the Service Group, The Constitution and the Family Welfare Society, which co-operates with this newspaper in the Ten Opportunities, are all proud.

"We feel like we are dealing with futures of boys and girls when we adopt these families and help them to get back on their feet," Mrs. Inman said. That is the truth. When anyone contributes to the Ten Opportunities, he is helping make the future of some poor, needy mother, father and children brighter and more secure.

A total of 48 men, women and children have been helped during these years since 1932 by the Service Group. They have had every kind of problem and every family has solved it. Mrs. F. will win out, too.

In addition to Mrs. Inman, officers of the Service Group are: Mrs. Gordon Kiser, first vice president; Mrs. Robert Maddox, second vice president; Mrs. F. J. Paxson, treasurer; Mrs. Herbert Alden, recording secretary; Mrs. William Bailey Lamar, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Robert Alston, parliamentary. Mrs. Thomas K. Glenn and Mrs. William Kiser retired as vice presidents this year.

the attorney said he was not ready to say.

Governor Rivers promulgated the martial law order shortly before dawn yesterday morning and General Stoddard summoned Colonel Skelton and five members of the 179th field artillery to carry it into effect. Stoddard said that only four men would be on duty at one time unless it developed that more men were needed. None of the men on duty yesterday carried firearms. Two enlisted men stood at attention just inside the main door of the highway building, while two more were posted just outside the chairman's office.

Meanwhile, the Patten-Gillis-Watson board carried on the functions of the highway department with no one acting as chairman. Secretary-Treasurer Sam J. Boykin said he was acting on papers which bore two of the three members' signatures. Other division heads were understood to be following the same plan.

Miller Goes Hotel. After leaving the department, Miller went to a downtown hotel where he has been maintaining headquarters since he was first ousted more than two weeks ago.

The court order issued by Judge Smith Saturday night enjoining Patten and his associates had the full effect of law inasmuch as the court declined to grant a supercedas pending final adjudication by the supreme court.

Two other court actions growing out of the Miller ouster are scheduled for hearing this week. The first is a quo warranto filed by Miller against Patten seeking up test title to the office of chairman while the second is a mandamus seeking to force Gillis and Watson to recognize Miller as board chairman.

In his order putting the military authorities in control of highway department properties, Governor Rivers said that "They (Patten, Gillis and Watson) operate under protection of the military authorities until such time as they can operate unhindered without such protection." This was taken to mean that when the supreme court's judgment on all legal phases of the case, the military control would be withdrawn.

Stoddard in "Clives." General Stoddard went to the highway department in civilian clothes and supervised the setting up of military control. He returned to the adjutant general's office before Miller and Branch arrived.

"It appeared that this crowd that is trying to stir up confusion in the highway department might hurt themselves," he said. "I don't want the department thrown into confusion by such tactics nor do I want it used as a stage for political horse play."

Rivers' order placing the department under control of the military is similar but not identical to that used by former Governor Talmadge five years ago to oust Chairman J. W. Barnett, of Athens, and Commissioner W. C. Varen, of Moultrie. Talmadge operated the department under martial law as well as under protection of martial law. Captain Barnett sought to contest Talmadge's action in the courts but the supreme court never passed on the matter as the question became moot before a decision could be reached. Barnett finally accepted pay for the time he was out of office and dropped the case.

FIRE PERILS HOME OF MISS MITCHELL

First Editions of 'Gone With the Wind' Removed From Apartment.

Fire yesterday morning interrupted Margaret Mitchell's much-sought rest following the world premiere of "Gone With the Wind," and momentarily threatened many of the GWTW souvenirs. The fire originated in the basement of the apartment building at 1268 Piedmont avenue where the author and her husband, John R. Marsh, live. Assistant Fire Chief P. S. Fleming said spontaneous combustion of oily rags caused the flames. Though the fire was in an adjacent wing to the Marsh apartment, smoke poured through the floors causing Marsh to quickly remove valuable papers and the first editions of the foreign language editions of "Gone With the Wind." Firemen confined the flames to the hallways and the basement of the other section. Mrs. Marsh was not at home when the fire started. Fleming estimated the total damage, chiefly from smoke, at $2,500. Apartments occupied by C. G. Blount, George H. Jewett, James Silver and Mrs. Howard Muss were damaged by smoke.

LATIN AMERICANS TOLD OF STOKOWSKI TOUR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Leopold Stokowski sought the help of Latin-American diplomats today to further his plan to charter the new steamship "America" for a goodwill musical tour to their countries. The orchestra leader told a meeting of the Pan-American Union that he proposed taking an orchestra of 109 young musicians to Latin America, visiting all possible countries, and taking along 1,000 to 1,200 money-spending tourists.

Bread made with yeast may contain a small quantity of alcohol.

Captain Spins Yarn of Wool And Downfall

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Germany's loss of the raider Graf Spee off this port was due to the lateness of Australia's wool crop. British ship captains who had been prisoners aboard the pocket battleship said Captain Hans Langsdorff told them he had waited nearly two weeks off the coast of Africa after October 10 to intercept wool ships bound for England.

But the Australian clip was late, so the captain gave up waiting and sailed for South American waters, falling into the British trap.

JUDGE BANS MAN FROM COUNTY JOB

Civil Court Worker, Found Guilty of Perjury, Gets Suspended Sentence.

Charles G. Drake, of Union City, a county employee for the past nine years, yesterday drew a two to three-year suspended sentence on the condition that he shall not become a county employee for the duration of the sentence or appeal the conviction.

Drake was convicted of perjury in Fulton Superior Court Friday. Judge Virlyn B. Moore in passing sentence warned "violation of either condition will result in revocation of the suspension, and then added:

"While the jury fixed your sentence at two to three years, the court will suspend it in its discretion because of your previous good record and on account of your family."

Drake, who was employed in the civil court of Fulton county and the tax assessor's office, was found guilty of giving perjured testimony in the trial of a civil suit in 1939 in which he sought to collect $1,225 from James L. Mordin on a series of notes.

The defendant had nothing to say when sentence was passed, but later issued a statement denying guilt.

WORK ON PIPE LINE TO BEGIN IN MONTH

Oil Conduit Will Link Florida Port With Atlanta.

Construction of the $5,000,000 gasoline pipe line from Port Saint Joe, Ind., to Atlanta will begin in mid-January, it was announced yesterday in Chicago by the Southeastern Pipe Line company, which will have headquarters here. Principal stockholders in the firm are the Pure Oil company and the Gulf Refining company. The line will be built of eight-inch pipe from Port Saint Joe here, according to engineering officials, with a pipe of six-inch size running from Atlanta to the northern end of the line at Lookout Mountain Station in Georgia.

Ocean-going tankers will bring gasoline for the line to Port Saint Joe from Pure Oil's Smiths Bluff refinery at Port Neches, Texas, and from Gulf's refining at Port Arthur, Texas, both major supply sources in each company's group of refineries.

The line is expected to be in operation by early summer.

Captain P. B. Marks, Fire Veteran, To Quit Engine Company for Farm

Retirement Granted After 27 Years; Webb To Succeed Him.

Captain P. B. Marks, head of Fire Company No. 20, will retire tomorrow from active duty after 27 years' continuous service in which he established himself as one of Atlanta's best "smoke-eaters."

His successor, elected on recommendation of Chief C. C. Styron yesterday afternoon, will be Charles Webb, who has served the department since January 6, 1912. Webb has been a lieutenant for the past three years.

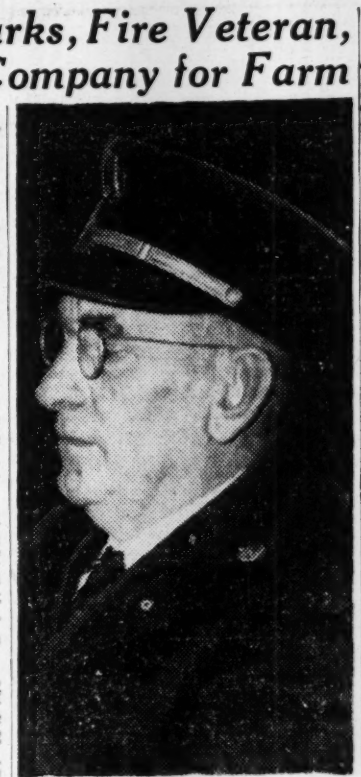

Captain Marks said he will leave the city soon for Albany and will settle on a farm near that of J. M. Bradley, another retired fireman. He joined the department August 5, 1912, was made a lieutenant in 1926, and a captain in 1931.

During the great fire of 1917, which leveled a large section of the city in the Boulevard area, he fought fire constantly for 12 hours, a record few surpassed. Several years ago he was injured on duty.

Courage Lauded.

Upon his retirement he was lauded by Chief Styron as "a man of daring and courage, and one who has not a single black mark in his service record."

For 13 years he served as a deacon of the Capitol View Baptist church. His successor, Captain Webb, never has been reprimanded by a superior or called before the Board of Firemasters, his record reveals. He has been stationed at No. 12 since 1915, with the exception of only a few months. He has missed only four days' duty since joining the department.

Married and with one living child, he lives at 1377 LaFrance street, N. E.

The Board of Firemasters also selected, on the chief's recommendation, N. Strickland as lieutenant to succeed Captain Webb.

EXPERTS DISCUSS FARM FINANCING

Map 1940 Program With 'Economy' Theme at Secret Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Nine top-flight government fiscal and agricultural officials discussed ways and means of financing the 1940 farm program at a secret meeting today in the office of Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr.

Although Morgenthau and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace declined comment, it was learned authoritatively that an effort was made to outline a program which would make the farm program self-sufficient and self-financing to the highest possible degree.

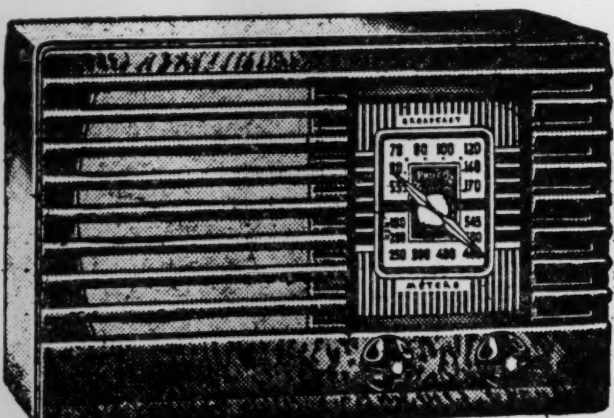

Topmost in the minds of the conferees was the question of easing the strain on the budget for the next fiscal year, which is expected to bulge with heavy national defense expenditures.

Foremost expedient debated, it was said, was a plan by Wallace to "streamline" farm financing by issuing certificates to farmers, who would collect benefits directly from the persons to whom they sell their products.

Some Agriculture Department economists believe that this simple procedure would obviate the necessity for parity payments. Congress voted $225,000,000 for such subsidies during the current fiscal year, designating them for producers of cotton, corn, wheat, rice and tobacco.

Here Is a Tasty Eggnog Made With Fruit

By Sally Saver.

Open house on Christmas day! What scenes of warm hospitality, of friendly holiday greetings, of happy mingling with friends and relatives that phrase conjures. Open house on Christmas day has become a tradition in many homes, as well it might, because it affords unusually fine opportunity for getting the most joy out of a joyous season.

What to serve? Well, that is a problem if you've asked friends and relatives to bring their families, or if you are holding open house for your friends and husbands and son's and daughter's friends, too. Christmas cookies, fruit cake, date cake, nut bread and butter, fruits, nuts, candies—all these are right for the "open house," but we need a beverage. Spiced hot punch, for which I gave you the recipe several days ago, or the fruit eggnog pictured today would be both appropriate and good for a mixed crowd of grownups and children.

Here's how to make fruit eggnog:

Fruit Eggnog.

3 eggs.
3 tablespoons sugar.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
2 tablespoons orange juice.
3 cups canned unsweetened pineapple juice.
Gated nutmeg.
Beat egg yolks and whites separately. Beat the egg whites until they are stiff but not dry. Beat the yolks until thick and creamy. Add the sugar and continue beating. Pour in the fruit gradually and continue to beat. Fold in the egg whites and pour into glasses. Top with grated nutmeg. Fruit juices and eggs should be cold. This makes five eight-ounce glasses, as are pictured above. For a crowd, simply multiply, but do not make up too much too far in advance of serving. It is better to have fruit juices ready and cold, keep eggs cold, and put together rather small quantities as needed.

Sally Saver will answer personally questions about foods, recipes and service. Write or phone The Constitution or Wa. 5653.

Andy Has Been Worrying About the Wrong Thing

By Dr. William Brady.

My brother Andy had a pain in the abdomen recently. It worried him because he is now about the age of a bit older than father was when he succumbed to sarcoma of the abdominal wall. Sarcoma is a rapidly fatal form of cancer. Father's trouble had begun with abdominal pain, too. So Andy decided to say and do nothing at all.

Andy's case came to a head one day when the pain grew so severe he could not carry on. They brought him home, summoned a doctor, who summoned a surgeon, who requested immediate hospitalization of the patient. You probably have your suspicions as to what that means. Yes, you're right. But for what, would you guess? Appendicitis? Nah. What Andy had been nursing along and worrying about was a hernia, and the immediate operation was decided upon because the doctors feared the hernia was strangulated.

Hernia is a bulging or protrusion, usually of a portion of intestine, through the abdominal wall, generally through the inguinal canal. If the internal ring of the canal through which the protrusion occurs becomes swollen or tightens down the circulation to

"Throw-in" Play May Fulfill The Contract

By Harold Sharpsteen.

Whenever a favorable adverse lead is needed to fulfill your contract, always consider the possibilities of a "throw-in" play.

There are four common situations in which it is easily recognizable that a throw-in is the desirable play to make.

(1) Holding a doubtful tenace position in dummy or your own hand; (2) Holding a two-way finesse with no information as to which way the finesse should be taken; (3) Holding a dangerous suit in which a certain number of tricks is needed; (4) Holding an established suit, but lacking entries to reach it.

AVOIDS WRONG GUESS.
How declarer used an end-play to avoid a wrong guess on a two-way finesse is illustrated in the following deal:

S—Q 10 5 2
H—K 7 6
D—A 6 3

West led the diamond queen against South's six spade contract. South won and immediately drew trumps, ruffing dummy's losing diamond after another lead in that suit.

RISK IN FINESSE.
A simple heart finesse makes six spades, provided of course, it is successful. But, the risk of taking a losing finesse may be avoided by a throw-in play. This can be accomplished by leading three rounds of hearts or three rounds of clubs.

If one opponent holds the singly-guarded heart queen it will drop, and South will have no problem. So South tries the heart suit first. But, the queen is too well guarded and South leads his third and last heart. West is thrown into the lead and must now return clubs for a diamond lead would give declarer a ruff and discard.

TILL TOMORROW.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Wonder if I couldn't hand out a little free advice through your column to girls who are over anxious to get married. I was one of them and I have regretted it ever since. I asked a man to marry me and have not been able to live it down. Not that my husband isn't a good man. He is; but he never loses an opportunity to throw it up to me that I asked him to marry me—sort of beggar like. Say what you please, it is humiliating to be reminded that you took the initiative and did the proposing. So my advice to the girls is; leavyear, or no leavyear, leave the proposing to the men who prefer to do it.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

Answer:
If's pretty well conceded that while a man is flattered at having a woman propose to him (unless it happens that she's rushed him too fast and disgusted him) he's bound to feel a new respect for whom he thinks he has wooed and won. Right there is the catch, incidentally, for the vast majority of husbands were married long before they offered themselves and were accepted; but they live and die without suspecting the truth. The girls who got away with the branding were cautious and patient in the crisis.

However, it would seem that a courting female who had landed her man could hold on to her sense of humor and laugh when he twitted her with having tied him up and taken him home. She should counter by telling him it was the best day's work she ever did, of which she's proud to the bursting point. That would puff him up and shut him up.

Doesn't this prove that it's a dangerous business to go against nature? Even when the game is in the bag, success loses some of its sweetness when a wife is reminded that she took an unfair advantage of the poor beast.

So, gals, take a leaf from this lady's journal; lead the boy friends gently but firmly up to the point of proposal, then back away a teeny, weeny little bit and let them have the he-man delight of wooing and winning.

Now's the Time For You to Look Your Loveliest

By Ida Jean Kain.

The holiday season is the time of the year when every woman is entitled to look her loveliest. Some of you will think how much better you would look if you had carried out those good intentions as to weight and measurements. Well, it's too late for that now, but here's an emergency measure: Perk up your posture to make a quick change in your figure!

You know how much better you look in your best frock when you don a stately stance? The trouble is that your special occasion posture usually doesn't last more than 30 minutes. Your special occasion muscles aren't up to it! But when you go to work on a few muscle groups, you can strengthen them amazingly in a week's time. If you will exercise for 15 minutes a day for the next few days, you should be able to get through an evening looking as stately as Eliza, the heroine in "Pygmalion."

But before you start exercising, think about your spine—your backbone! It should be stretched straight but free from tension. When standing, your position should be such that an imaginary straight line would run from the ears, through the shoulders, the knee joints, and on down through the ankle joints.

One of the simplest and easiest posture exercises is to lie face downward on the floor and stretched to full extension. While in this position, contract and relax the gluteal muscles—the large muscles on the backs of the hips. Another simple one is to lie on the back on the floor with knees flexed, soles of feet on the floor, and press the small of the back flat on the floor. Both exercises are so easy that you probably won't appreciate the improvement they can make in your posture and figure!

Carrying the head forward is one of the commonest—and most disfiguring—posture faults. To correct that tendency, make a double chin: Pull the chin in slowly but forcibly, contracting neck and throat muscles. Relax very slowly, letting the tension ease almost of its own accord. Repeat 10 times. That exercise is a favorite among experts for correcting a dowager's hump and a double chin.

Another good exercise for erasing that obnoxious hump on the nape of the neck is to stand against the door jamb and try to flatten the back so that the entire length of the back—nape of neck and small of back included—touches the wood.

Maintaining a constant upward strength of the trunk muscles is the best possible trick for slimming the waist. Even the slimmest waist will look thick when the possessor lets herself slump.

To minimize a prominent hip-line, learn to stand with the hips tucked under. Here's the process, step by step—some of you have asked for it!

First, stand with feet parallel and about six inches apart. Pull up with the front thigh muscles and have the knees straight. Keep pulling up with the thigh muscles as you push the hips slightly forward without letting the stomach protrude. The only possible way you can do that is by pulling the hips in and under. You may have to practice it a few times, but you won't need anyone to tell you when you've mastered the technique.

ATTIRED FOR A SKIING HOLIDAY: Muriel Angelus, of the films, wears this skiing outfit, which is typical of the high style sports tights that are popular in Hollywood this season. Navy blue gabardine trousers tucked into the ski boots. Bright red bone buttons and a matching bonnet set off a quilted white jacket. Navy mittens are faced with white.

MY DAY: The President's Family Is Home for Christmas

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—Such excitement as we had this morning! The whole family from Seattle was arriving by train. The railroad people told me last night that to be on the safe side I had better be at the station by 8:15, for that particular train often ran ahead of schedule. However, this morning it ran a little behind schedule and it was five minutes before 9 when it pulled in, and mountains of baggage were disgorged before my nine-year-old grandson appeared, followed by the rest of his family.

I think my daughter must have done a very remarkable piece of work, for everybody, including the father of the family and the baby, looked well and cheerful. My recollection of traveling with babies is a succession of difficulties. The food was never right, they wouldn't sleep when they should, and altogether a 24-hour trip seemed endless. This family, after four days of travel, seemed rested and well, and wonder of wonders, entirely good-humored. It is evident to me that each generation improves upon the last!

Everybody flew about the house; first a visit to the President, and then to his mother, and the final joy was to discover that Uncle Jimmy was here to greet them too. Now the President has his little car filled to overflowing. First they visited the library, which is completely roofed in so that the work can go on during the winter. Then a trip is being made to the President's cottage at the top of the hill, which Anna has never seen finished. At noon Jimmy has to be taken to a train. We all have to be home for lunch and the ceremony attendant to the presentation by the President to Mrs. Margaret Chandler Aldrich of a congressional medal for her nursing service with the Red Cross during the Spanish-American War. I shall tell you more about that tomorrow.

I must mention the fact that I saw "The Man Who Came to Dinner," by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, on Friday night. It is a delightful comedy, clever and amusing, and I can quite see why every seat is sold until some time in January. Of course, the central figure is not an altogether admirable character, but in spite of all his faults and downright wickedness at times, he is lovable and life could never be dull around him. You would get up early in the morning to keep up with him.

I spoke at Town Hall, as I told you, yesterday morning in New York city, and found the audience very ready with their questions. I wished that this period might have lasted longer. The snow is melting here, which grieves the children, who would have liked to go coasting at once. I am afraid it isn't going to lie on the ground long enough to make that possible.

A New Hollywood Fashion Combines Fur With Suede

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—High style sports wear is predominant in Hollywood star wardrobes this season. Muriel Angelus, Paramount player opposite Ronald Colman in "The Light That Failed," wears a costume simultaneously correct and becoming for a skiing holiday at Sun Valley. Navy blue gabardine trousers tucked into conventional ski boots. A quilted white jacket has bright red bone buttons and a bonnet to match. Navy mittens are faced with white.

The parachute is sometimes very important baggage in an airplane, but Virginia Grey thinks it's a life-saver in rainy weather as well. She has a new raincoat fashioned of waterproofed white parachute cloth. Cut exactly like a shirtwaist dress, there is no excess bulk to camouflage a trim figure. Completing the latest in rain-repellers, the young actress sports a bright green Scotch cap trimmed with a red feather.

Socks were the thing when Lana Turner recently appeared wearing the latest in sport ensembles. Her three-quarter-length cable-knit socks were complemented by a very short navy wool skirt, lined with bright red taffeta. With the skirt, the starlet wore a navy slip-over cashmere sweater topped by a quilted white jacket with novelty carved silver buttons. Giving a finishing touch were French beret.

Dancer Zorina has gone over to the Spanish side for some of her formal gowns. She has a bouffant gown in lustrous white satin showing hips wired in a manner of the famous Infantas. The new fashion term for such hips is "shelled." The low neckline, bodice and sleeves of the gown are outlined with black velvet scrolls. Zorina wears a black net and lace shawl over her shoulders.

Milo Anderson has combined fur with suede in an outfit for Jane Bryan. The suede dress in hunter green shows mink hip pockets and Jane wears a toque of mink.

More news from the fur front. Rosemary Lane is matching her furs in buckles and bows on her pumps. With a leopard jacket worn with brown dress and hat, Rosemary wears brown suede pumps with leopard bows on the toes. A princess lined coat in navy velvet with baum market collar has moire pumps to match in color and carrying puffs of the fur on the toes.

A miniature hand-knit sweater is the latest in lapel pins! Little June Preiser—she saw her in "Babes in Arms"—has one in white trimmed in bright red. The little sweater measures about two inches square and is made exactly like June's own hand-knit—long sleeves and all.

Ann Sheridan spent some of her "Oomph!"-earned pennies on a black velvet bouffant gown with gold lame shoulder straps and matching velvet mittens, the thumbs and "paws" outlined with matching lame.

The latest contribution to the turban scene in a "Cuban" turban owned by Lya Lys. It copies the headgear of the Cuban hamsels and shows a satin cap in royal blue with a shirred cartwheel of the material stuck right on the front. Lya wears this with a light brown crepe dress, and her gloves match the turban.

One of the most attractive evening coats of the season belongs to Lola Lane. It's a monk's robe in white silk serge, with tasseled gold cord around the waist. The cowl neckline becomes a hood lined with gold lame. Her gown is a slim-lined gold lame with pleated skirt.

Olivia de Havilland wears a tiny red rosebud stuck into each loop earring when she wears a silver chiffon gown and a red rose corsage. Olivia, by the way, is flatterer her ankles as well as her face and brow with fur. This threesome in mink accents a complete outfit—suit and boots—in dark brown wool.

Lunching at the Hollywood Brown Derby, Dorothy Lamour, in a well-tailored gray wool suit. The jacket had wide revers, hand-stitched in a darker gray, and very in vogue shoulders, while the skirt was perfectly plain. A lipstick-red hand-knit sweater and a big lipstick-red felt breton with corded piped edge gave a bright note to the suit.

To Create Good Impression, Use Good English

What do people think when they meet you for the first time? They have so little to judge you by in casual encounters. There's your appearance, your speech—that's about all.

And if your speech is sprinkled with such crudities as "You WAS SOMEBODIES . . . LIKE I SHOULD," then your appearance, fine though it may be, counts little.

It's different when you speak correctly, say "You WERE . . . SOMEWHERE . . . AS I SHOULD." For good speech is like the sterling marks on silver—it tells what you are, that you belong in the best places.

Cultivated people exclude you from their society if you make such mistakes as "Where is he AT . . . Between you and I . . . Snobish? Not at all. They just prefer people whose English doesn't grate. Those who say correctly "Where is he . . . Between you and ME . . . She is light-COMPLEX-IONED." Such people won't be embarrassing guests, can be asked anywhere.

Fortunately, it is easy to put your speech into the "sterling" class. With a list of common errors and right forms, you check your speech, weed out the blunders that give a wrong impression to new acquaintances, defeat you in a job interview. Instead of "As tall as ME . . . LEAVE me go . . . She was LAYING down," you learn to say, "As tall as I . . . LET me go . . . She was LYING down."

A few minutes a day spent in grooming your speech and you make a good impression everywhere. Our 40-page booklet, Common Errors in English, points out mistakes you're likely to overlook, tells how to correct them, make your English above criticism.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, COMMON ERRORS IN ENGLISH, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address and the name of your book.

Christmas Visitors To Include Distinguished Novelist-Author

By Sally Forth.

ATLANTA has a distinguished author among her legion of Christmas visitors in the person of Mrs. Flora Robinson, of Philadelphia, Pa., formerly of Marietta, who is the guest of her son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Freeman, on Belmont drive.

The author of many short stories since 1926 and 1927, Mrs. Robinson's first novel, "As a Woman Doeth," published by Carlyle House, New York, will be off the press at an early date. She recently completed a short novel titled "All Men Are Brutes," and is now in the midst of writing her second book-length one, which she calls "Yesterday's Tomorrow." The visitor contemplates establishing residence in this city in the near future, and will be enthusiastically welcomed by her many friends here.

Born in Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Robinson is the daughter of the late Fred S. James and Loretta Whitney James. Much of her early married life was spent in Marietta with her two children and her mother, where they lived first in the old Kilby home and later in the Dunwoody residence.

Mrs. Robinson is the granddaughter of Pascal Whitney, inventor of the Deering harvester needle. She is also a direct descendant of Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin. Her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William James, were natives of Scotland, her grandmother having been a descendant of Scotch nobility.

ANENT stories following "Gone With the Wind" week in Atlanta, here is an interesting anecdote. On the crowded mezzanine floor of the Georgian Terrace, seats were at a premium all during the festivities, but Mrs. Leon Mandeville, who resides at the hotel, owns an heirloom sofa which was brought from her apartment and placed on the mezzanine.

The historic sofa belonged to her grandfather long before the War Between the States, and Mrs. Mandeville had it placed before one of the windows overlooking Peachtree street.

Catching sight of an elderly gentleman, who, by the way, is 84 years young, standing all by himself, she invited him to share her sofa. In the conversation that followed she learned he was Clark Gable's uncle. He quietly slipped into Atlanta from Florida to surprise his nephew, in answer to a telegram sent by Clark's father requesting him to see Clark on his memorable trip to the city.

So, Mrs. Mandeville and Mr. Gable sat side by side on the antique sofa, where Alexander H. Stephens, vice president of the Confederacy, had often rested when he visited the late Judge Philip Robinson down in Greensboro, Ga.

They gazed at historic Peachtree street, made famous in Margaret Mitchell's internationally-read book; viewed the colorful throng, and watched eagerly for the first glimpse of Rhett Butler's much heralded and spectacular home-coming.

AS A RULE, only the frivolities of life are associated with debutantes during their coming-out season. Today, however, Sally is informed that one debutante, at least, has resumed her studies and is attending classes at Agnes Scott College, where she was enrolled before she decided to make her bow.

The deb is Allie Malone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Malone, who was formally presented to society at an elaborate reception given at her fifteenth street residence.

ANNE HANES ROGERS, daughter of the Emory Rogers, of this city, has added another laurel to her crown of achievements, having recently been chosen freshman representative to the Student Council at Chestnut Hill College, in Philadelphia, Pa., where she is a popular student. Anne, you know, is a graduate of Sacred Heart Parochial school here, having served as president of the Student Council and editor of the school paper and yearbook during her enrollment.

Upon the occasion of her graduation from high school, the attractive belle was awarded a four-year scholarship to her present alma mater, which was presented her through Rev. Gerald P. O'Hara—of the Tara O'Hara—who is bishop of the Savannah-Atlanta diocese.

Miss Virginia Papy Is Presented To Society at Elaborate Tea-Dance

MISS VIRGINIA PAPY.

Ushering in the calendar of brilliant social events for the week was the tea dance at which Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Papy entertained yesterday to introduce to members of Atlanta society their lovely debutante daughter, Miss Virginia Papy. The affair was held at the Biltmore hotel and assembled several hundred members of the unmarried contingent of society between the hours of 5 and 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Papy, Miss Papy, and Mrs. Mary Joyce Barnum, sister of the debutante, received the guests at the entrance of the hotel ballroom, standing before a screen of palms and ferns starred with orchids and bouquets and baskets of lovely flowers sent the debutante by a host of admiring friends.

The ballroom was adorned for the occasion with boughs of holly and mistletoe, combined with poinsettia and myriads of crimson tapers. The crystal chandeliers were festooned with garlands of smilax, and suspended beneath were red and silver Christmas bells. The punch and coffee tables were beautified with Christmas foliage interspersed with red roses and carnations, from which arose tall red tapers.

Mrs. Papy received her guests wearing a handsome black crepe gown fashioned with a bodice and long sleeves of black Chantilly lace. Her flowers were a shoulder cluster of valley lilies.

Miss Papy chose for her formal bow an exquisite gown of white crepe, fashioned with a bodice beaded in a lacy crystal design. Over the costume she wore brief bolero jacket with puffed sleeves, which repeated the crystal embroidery motif. In her titian hair, the debutante wore a white orchid, and a spray of orchids adorned her shoulder. She carried a lovely tulle fan, applied in real lace and caught with a spray of orchids, which was a gift from Mrs. Eugene Cronheim.

Mrs. Barnum was an attractive figure wearing a gown of chartreuse jersey trimmed in gold and offset with a cluster of lavender orchids.

Miss Virginia Heath, of San Antonio, Tex., who is the guest of Miss Papy, was an attractive visitor. She wore a two-tone blue crepe gown, with a shirred bodice, and completed by a red fox-jacket. Her flowers were a shoulder spray of orchids.

Assisting in entertaining were the members of Mrs. Papy's bridge club, who are Mesdames Rogers Toy, William Bailey Lamar, Eugene Cronheim, Ernest Osborne, A. Q. Smith, William Percy, and Taylor Peake.

Miss Martha Dunwoody Marries Lloyd Smith Jr., at Church Rites

Miss Martha Lockhart Dunwoody, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William England Dunwoody, became the bride of Lloyd Credille Smith Jr., at a ceremony performed yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the Peachtree Christian church.

Dr. Robert W. Burns, pastor, officiated in the presence of relatives and friends, and Mrs. Victor Clark, organist, presented a program of music before and during the marriage service.

Palms were grouped in artistic arrangement to form a background for the altar which was flanked on either side by branched candelabra holding gleaming white tapers. Four large baskets of white chrysanthemums were placed at intervals, and family pews were designated by clusters of white chrysanthemums tied with white tulle bows.

Ushers were Edward Maddox Jr., William De Mouy, George N. Spring Jr., and Edward Mattingly. Miss Mary Drake, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor and the bridesmaids included Mesdames Emmakate Vretman, Jean Holmes, Mrs. Belmont Stringfellow, Mrs. James Riney, and Mrs. J. R. Keller were junior bridesmaids.

The maid of honor and bridesmaids wore identical gowns of Tarragon green velvet. The brides were made with low square necklines and long tight-fitting sleeves ending in points over the wrists. The full graceful skirts ended in brief trains and were shirred to long-waisted bodices. Bows of green velvet adorned their hair and they wore gold and pearl necklaces, gifts to them from the bride. Their flowers were sheaves of white chrysanthemums.

The junior maids wore similar gowns of green velvet made with short puffed sleeves, and they wore ribbon bows with streamers in their hair. Their rhinestone bracelets were gifts of the bride, and they carried round bouquets of smaller white chrysanthemums.

The beautiful brunette bride was given in marriage by her father, William England Dunwoody, and they were met at the altar by the groom and his father, Lloyd Smith Sr., who was best man.

The bride's gown of white slipper satin featured a low square neckline and the long-waisted bodice introduced long sleeves which formed points over the wrists. The long full skirt was shirred to the waist and flared to form a long fan-shaped train. A coronet of brussels lace trimmed with clusters of orange blossoms was fitted to her hair, from which fell her exquisite veil of lace and illusion. Her only ornament was a brooch of pearls and amethysts, worn by her great-great-grandmother, Mrs. Bostwick Howard, on her wedding day.

The bride's lovely bouquet was fashioned of gardenias centered with white orchids and showered with valley lilies in cascade effect.

Mrs. Dunwoody, mother of the bride, wore a gown of ashes of roses trimmed in sequins. Her hat matched her gown and her flowers were a shoulder cluster of purple-throated orchids.

After the marriage service, Mr. and Mrs. Dunwoody entertained at a reception at the Druid Hills Golf Club. The guests included the bridal party, relatives and out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunwoody, the bride and groom, and wedding party received the guests.

Assisting were Mrs. Howard Parrish, Mrs. William DeMouy and Miss Elizabeth Respass.

The bride's table, overlaid with Venetian lace, was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake embossed in valley lilies and topped with a miniature bride and groom. The cake was posed on a mound of valley lilies and maiden hair fern. Handsome silver candelabra held white burning tapers.

Palms smilax and white chrysanthemums formed the decorations throughout the reception rooms. The punch bowl was embedded in white flowers and greenery.

Mr. Smith and his bride left for a trip to New Orleans, after which they will reside on Piedmont avenue. For traveling the bride chose an ensemble of soft moon blue woolen with a full-length fitted coat. Her hat was brown and she used brown lizard accessories. She wore a scarf of bow martin and a shoulder bouquet of white orchids.

Parties Are Planned For Miss Daugherty

Five Southern Players Make Williamson All-America Team

All in the Game
—by Jack Troy

Here is the portrait of a man who has passed the stage of talking to himself. The last All-American football team he chanced to see floored him. He had much rather be left alone. But who can leave a man alone when he has sunk to such a mental state? He is in need of companionship and a little cheer. "I was all right," he said, "until I happened to see Paul Williamson's All-America. Now, that fellow had me guessing no little during the football season. I appreciate that it's hazardous business trying to forecast what any two football teams are going to do—let alone any 500—but I wish you would advise me on his All-America."

"It may be the fault of eyesight—I do not have my glasses with me—but isn't that first-team halfback listed from San Jose, or whatever you call it? And isn't that Missouri's Christian on the second team and Michigan's Harmon on the third team?"

A careful examination of the Williamson All-America revealed that he was seeing correctly.

"Well, Old Timer," Ferdinand interrupted, "San Jose had an undefeated season. You see, Old Pop Warner..."

"I appreciate that San Jose—or whatever you call it—had a fine year, but who did San Jose play? Is that school in the big leagues without anyone knowing about it?"

Not one to be interrupted without making some effort to put over his point, Ferdinand came right back. "Pop Warner, as I was saying, is advisory coach at San Jose, old timer. He knows..."

"Who's talking about Pop Warner?" old timer responded sharply. "He doesn't play any more, does he? You don't pick All-Americans on the basis of who's coaching the team."

"Is it that you don't like San Jose?" Ferdinand asked, trying a new method of attack.

"I don't know anything about not liking any school," old timer, highly critical, shot back. "What I am trying to figure out is how Williamson crossed me up again."

"You see, he spent all year beating the drums for Slippery Rock. Old Slippery Rock was his ace in the hole. And now when it comes to a showdown, his first team All-America includes a halfback from San Jose. Just can't figure the fellow out."

A GOOD TEAM—EXCEPT.

The Williamson team is a good one with that one confusing exception where Leroy Zimmerman, of San Jose, is in the first-team backfield. The school simply isn't in the "A" classification of football.

The south is represented by Paul Severin, of North Carolina; Harley McCollum, of Tulane; Ed Molinski, of Tennessee; and Banks McFadden, of Clemson. Ken Kavanaugh and Milton Howell landed on the second team, while Bob Ison and George McFee were third-team choices. Polanski, great Wake Forest back, also made the third team.

Of course, picking a representative All-America now has become an impossible task. For boys like Harmon, Lansell, Christian, et al., must be about as good as they come.

And it is not too far-fetched to think that maybe the best eleven men on the country's outstanding team are pretty good, too. A team like Tennessee that has been unscored on in

Made eligible by finishing among the first 30 in the 1939 open were Johnny Bulla of Chicago, San Byrd of Philadelphia, Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C.; Matt Kowal of Philmont, Pa., Amateur Wilford Wehrle of Racine, Wis., E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of O. A. K. Park, Ill., and Ed Oliver of Hornell, N. Y.

The most capable U. S. professional not already qualified will be selected by ballot by the present and past open champions. The present and past amateur titleholders will nominate the most capable amateur not previously qualified by tournament regulations.

12 WIN TURKEYS AT BOBBY JONES

A dozen Christmas turkeys were given away Monday to members of the Bobby Jones Municipal Golf Association for racetrack (on the turkey) tournament, over the week end. The winning scores were checked Monday after which the awards were given. There were 62 participants in the turkey tourney.

C. W. Bone and Mrs. Tumlin won the low gross prizes with 728. Low net awards went to W. E. Willingham Jr., Lee Godfrey, Paul Charles, and A. C. McDonough.

Accuracy (or luck) in the draw went to Jim Colerian, H. Pruitt, Rufus Brown, Luther Drennon, Gordon Freeman and Verne Murrain.

Marvin Russell won the weekly bogey with a 71, with second place going to C. G. Conn Jr. and W. H. Batts, one stroke away from the winner.

J. E. McCormack and Ned Murphy were so far away from the bogey they shared the booby prize.

Cheney Has 7 Pars, Birdie and Buzzard.

W. O. Cheney, principal of Tech High, and one of the best south-paw golfers in Atlanta, started his holiday golf with an unusually good round at Ansley Park, and is ready to challenge anyone.

Playing with E. L. Robinson, Guy Whitehead and Ed Taylor, the professor had seven pars, one birdie and one buzzard (he didn't shoot) for a 37.

Chiozza To Return To Giants in Spring

For the present Chiozza mustn't do anything more strenuous than swing a bat or walk, but he must walk a total of 10 miles daily.

PERFECTION IN THE FIELD --- AS GOLDIE FREEZES ON POINT

Goldie, female pointer owned by Bob Woodruff and handled by Major Trammell Scott, had a spot of hard luck in the Albany field trials last year. Goldie got involved with a snag in high grass and was lost. But it's going to be a different story this year, according to her handler. She is going to be involved in a little story having to do with "bringing home the bacon," Scott declares. The dog is considered an outstanding prospect.

TECH HIGH ENDS PRACTICE TODAY

Work for Jacksonville Will Be Resumed After Christmas.

By ROY WHITE
Tech High's football team will suspend activities at 3 o'clock this afternoon following a long practice at Piedmont park in preparation for a New Year's charity game at Jacksonville, Fla. Work for the all-star game Monday week will be resumed one week from today for five sessions, though no rough work is slated at any of the practices.

Today's work will be largely a dummy scrimmage against passes, for Tech High has been weaker against passes than against any other offense.

Florida's all-stars, selected from all the high school teams in Jacksonville, will not have too much time to devote to a running attack, so Coaches Tolbert and Sidney Scarborough are looking for a concentrated forward passing attack against Tech High.

While Tech High is closing out its football work, Atlanta's prep activities for the most part will be suspended until the reopening of schools early in January.

The prep basketball league will open on January 9, giving plenty of time to get ready for the opener.

Purples, Smithies Play 2 Weeks Earlier in 1940.

Boys' High and Tech High will play their annual football game next year on November 1, two weeks earlier than this year. It is the earliest date for the game in the history of the two schools.

Although no definite arrangements have been made for a site for the game, it is likely that Grant field will be the place instead of Ponce de Leon park.

Georgia Tech will play Duke University at Durham on November 2, so officials at Tech High and Boys' High will seek Grant field, in the absence of Tech the following Saturday afternoon.

Inability to take care of an increasing crowd at Ponce de Leon park from year to year has prompted Principal W. O. Cheney and Coach Gabe Tolbert of Tech High and Principal H. O. Smith and Athletic Director and Coach

One of Leading Gainers, Bosch Scored But Once

Johnny Wants New Hat for Scoring in Miami But Dodd Isn't Giving Any to Tailbacks.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.
A rather startling fact was brought to light the other day in a rather strange way.

After one of Tech's practices last week, little Johnny Bosch, one of the leading ground gainers on the Tech football team, walked up to Robert Lee Dodd and said:

"Say, Coach, if I score a touchdown against Missouri do I get a new hat?"

"What!" exclaimed Dodd. "Just when did you start thinking tailbacks get hats for scoring touchdowns. I've heard of coaches giving them to tackles or centers but I've never heard of them giving them to tailbacks."

"Why?" Johnny wanted to know. "Gosh, I haven't scored but one all year and that was in the last game of the season."

A rapid check-up with Coach Alex proved the fact—indeed a strange one. Can you think of any other tailback who has scored only one touchdown and has played as much as Bosch?

The Tech's have won seven games this season and have scored three times in the two they lost. But Little Johnny hasn't made but one of the touchdowns. Still, he is one of the team's leading ground gainers.

And, to top it all, the team's leading scorer is not a back. He's Rob Ison, All-Southeastern end, who has chalked up six touchdowns. The rest are scattered among the backs and ends.

Bosch's touchdown came on a nine-yard run against Georgia. It was one of the few times he ran with the ball when the Jackets had been within the enemy 15-yard stripe.

No doubt there is some good and wealthy Tech alumnus who will give Johnny a hat if he scores a touchdown in the Orange Bowl.

So, the best thing Johnny can do is score six touchdowns and get enough hats to last him a lifetime—provided they're good hats.

We would give him ours but it is a bit battered from two seasons of wear and football trips.

Shorty Doyal of Boys' High to move the game up a couple of weeks so that Grant field may be used.

EDDIE MOLINSKI AND MCCOLLUM PLACE FOR S.E.C.

Tennessee Guard Among Six Almost-Unanimous Choices.

By PAUL B. WILLIAMSON.
Six men stood out as almost unanimous choices on the poll of 500 colleges for the three Williamson All-American teams—the All-American, the Alternative All-American and the Little All-American.

Five Southern players made the All-American. They are Eddie Molinski, of Tennessee; McCollum, of Tulane; Kimbrough, of Texas A. & M.; Severin, of North Carolina, and McFadden, of Clemson.

They were Nile Kinnick, back of Iowa; John Kimbrough, back of Texas A. & M.; John Schieck, center of Santa Clara; Edward Molinski, Tennessee's big guard; Harry Smith, guard of the University of Southern California, and Nicholas Drahoos, Cornell's powerful tackle.

Kinnick received more votes for the All-American than any other player in the nation's colleges.

KINNICK IS TOPS.

Voted most valuable player in each of the three groups were:

All-American—Kinnick, back, of Iowa.

Alternate All-American—Lloyd Madden, back, of Colorado Mines.

"Little" All-American—Sam Hammerstrom, back, of Union, New York.

Trophies will be presented to members of the first team in each of the three groups, and an attractive certificate in a folder will be given each of 33 players in each classification.

SMALLER COLLEGES.

For the first time in the history of the Williamson system players from the smaller colleges were prominently mentioned for the big All-American, which is reflected in putting Leroy Zimmerman, of San Jose State, on the first team of the nation as halfback. Ordinarily players from San Jose would make the Alternate All-American. But this year San Jose had such a remarkable record—undefeated and untied in 13 games—that it showed as well, or better, against common foes as its near-great rival, Santa Clara. In addition it overwhelmed teams in its usual class.

Since 90 per cent of the returns from the far west voted for Zimmerman and he was mentioned many times from other sections, he won a place on the All-American first team in the balancing of voting points.

The Williamson method of selection was designed as the most equitable way to give proper representation to those three classifications. In making these selections the system reviewed press releases and campus papers from more than 350 colleges and sports pages of more than 60 daily newspapers. Then the answers to questionnaires sent out in November to nearly 700 colleges were card-indexed by teams and players.

Gibson Re-Injures Knee in Tech Scrimmage

WRIGHT, WHEBY, SON, SHAW ALSO IN INJURED LIST

However, Jackets in Excellent Frame of Mind; Defense Stressed.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY

Numerous minor ailments and injuries cropped up at Tech yesterday to hamper the Jackets' efforts for their Orange Bowl game with Missouri.

The injury situation was bright and cheerful when the Techs received practice last Monday after week's layoff but when yesterday's scrimmage was over things became dark and dismal again.

In the first place, Billy Gibson injured his knee in the drill. He was the first scrimmage he, Coach Aderhold and Johnny Bosch took part in since he hurt his knee in the scrimmage.

Jim Wright, husky sophomore center, who has been off the active list with a bad side, was scheduled to return to rough work at came up with an infected foot and earache and didn't even dress. Earl Wheby, Gibson's understudy at wingback, has one of the many cases of flu in town and will be in the hospital for a week.

But that isn't all. Cowboy Buck Shaw, who is still bothered by his knee, was not even in uniform and is unlikely to be of any value in the Miami classic January 1.

Finally, Rob Ison, all-Southwestern conference end, got a nasty cut over the eye in the scrimmage and will miss valuable practice time.

Despite this poor physical condition, the Jackets snapped through an hour's scrimmage in a good frame of mind. The boys determined to be ready for the Tigers and will probably play their best game of the year in Miami.

The varsity smeared the Red devil eleven which was using that coaches hope are Missouri formations. There has been no outting on the Tigers for the simple reason Tech didn't know she was going to play them. Scout boy McArthur went to a movie and saw Missouri run a couple of plays in a newsreel. He then diagrammed plays he thinks the Tigers will use.

There is really a lot of guesswork about the whole thing. The Jackets stressed defense in the workout and devoted more time to stopping running plays than to stopping passing plays.

Most of the work up to present has been on breaking up Paul Christman's passes, but very few were thrown yesterday.

Bosch was the star while the varsity had the ball on offense. He was running and punting well and showed no signs of his side injury.

Hawk Cavette and Charlie Sanders showed nice kicking form—especially the latter, whose punting has been in a slump for several weeks.

Harry Mehre, Mississippi coach, was among the spectators at the scrimmage.

MEHRE AT TECH DRILL

Mississippi Coach Believes Texas Aggies Will Beat Tulane.

Among spectators at Tech's football practice yesterday was Harry Mehre, Mississippi coach. He and Mrs. Mehre are spending the Christmas holidays in Athens with Mrs. Mehre's mother.

The ladies came shopping yesterday and Harry took a busman's holiday, coming out and watching a football practice.

Asked about prospects for next year, Coach Mehre said his biggest loss would be Bill Schneller, ace quarterback. He also loses all his regular ends and Winky Autry, center.

Mississippi plays Georgia the third game next season and Mehre was asked what he thought about the game.

"Well," he drawled, "I've been over in Athens for a couple of days and from what I hear about those freshmen, we are playing them about two years too late."

Mississippi had a very successful season this year, losing only to Tulane and Mississippi State.

"I think we played our best game when we opened up against L. S. U.," Harry remarked. "The rest of our schedule was not tough enough for our younger players to develop like they should."

Incidentally, Harry thinks Texas Aggies will beat Tulane in the Sugar Bowl game.

BISCUIT MUST CARRY 130 LBS. IN SANTA ANITA

Howard Horse Assigned Top Weight in $100,000 Race March 2.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—(AP)—Seabiscuit, training for a comeback and a fourth whack at the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, was assigned top weight of 130 pounds in imposts announced today for the mile and one-quarter event of March 2.

Weighted just behind was the ex-stake champion's stablemate of the Charles S. Howard string, Kayak II, at 128 pounds, and next came W. L. Brann's Challeidon, pride of Maryland, at 128.

Other candidates and their weight assignments included Cravat, 122; Dauber, 120; Sun Lover, 119; Ra II, South American importation, 118, and Specify, 116, but attention was centered on the "big three" nominees of the race, Seabiscuit, Kayak II and Challeidon.

Challeidon defeated Kayak II in the Pimlico Special this year, but the Howard horse, winner of the 1933 Santa Anita handicap, carried 126 pounds to Challeidon's 120. The imposts handed out for the Santa Anita are regulation scale weights for March, 1940, for the soon-to-be five-year-old Kayak and four-year-old Challeidon.

Seabiscuit went lame last February and did not go postward in the Santa Anita. He had been assigned 134 pounds. Kayak won, with 110 pounds aboard. Whether Seabiscuit will get up to the race remains to be seen.

Coast league critics hail him as a natural base runner. Jo Jo White, the former Tiger outfielder, led the Coast League base-stealers with 49, but DiMaggio is said to be even better on the paths than Jo Jo.

Metha is described by Texans as the greatest base-stealer the Lone Star loop has seen since Bobby Stowe. He stole 66 bases and was thrown out only six times for the best base-running record in the Texas league in 25 years.

Jimmy Dykes expected to give Metha a trial at second, and if he hits he'll be one of the prize packages of 1940.

Reese won the American Association base-stealing title by pilfering 35 bases. He stole 25 in a row and was thrown out only twice. His forte is getting the jump on the pitcher and scouts say he takes a longer lead off a base than anybody in baseball.

Rucker, nephew of Nap Rucker, is hailed by Southern Association managers and sports writers as the fastest thing in baseball. He stole only 19 bases but he has the speed to become another Ty Cobb on the base paths.

Stan Benjamin, who comes up to the Phillies, led the Southern in base-stealing with 43 thefts, but in a 100-yard dash with Rucker the Atlanta flyer beat him so easily it was no contest. Atlantanians are willing to bet that Rucker can outfoot any man in baseball in a 100-yard dash.

For another, four of the fastest rookies to come up in recent years will flash their speed in spring training camps. They are Dominic DiMaggio, San Francisco center-fielder, who'll bid for a job with the Red Sox; Frank Metha, Fort Worth infielder, who will try out with the White Sox; Harold (Pee Wee) Reese, Louisville shortstop, who will join the Dodgers; and John Rucker, Atlanta outfielder, who goes to the Giants.

The bespectacled young DiMaggio stole 39 bases last season, and

A VISIT WITH OLD DIZ.

LOS ANGELES—Even his three off-years with a sore arm hadn't removed any of the joy of living from Ole Diz, sometimes known as Dizzy Dean. He was still the irrepressible—the unbeaten.

Almost the first words my old golf, fishing and bridge partner said when I dropped in on him in Dallas were: "For the first time in three years I think the old arm has come around. It doesn't hurt me a bit now and there isn't a kink left in it."

"How much weight have you put on?" I asked the Cub pitcher.

"Too much," he admitted, "much too much. My best pitching weight used to be from 180 to 185. I'm now up to 220. I've got to get rid of at least 30 pounds and I'm starting out right away."

Diz can't afford to let much time slip away, with 30 pounds to remove from his tall system. He gave me his word he'd do a lot of walking and road work, also play a lot of golf, starting at once.

He admitted that his legs were not as good as they might be and that only a lot of work would bring them around.

LEGS AND PITCHING. "Few people appreciate the importance of good, strong legs for a pitcher," Diz said.

"Of course the arm is more important still. But those legs mean a lot. I rear back, 'way back on my right leg and I finish far on my left toe when I'm right and going good. That calls for legs in good condition. I've been too heavy for two years and my legs haven't been right for two years, but this time I hope it will be different."

"This time I'm going to report in shape and not try to get in shape after I reach camp."

"That sounds great," I said, "if you are not kidding; if you are not too lazy."

Diz grinned. "I know I'm kinder lazy," he said, "but I've got to show something this year. I was so afraid of making my arm worse that I quit even playing golf. I'm now 220-pound pitcher. I've got to get down to 190, anyway."

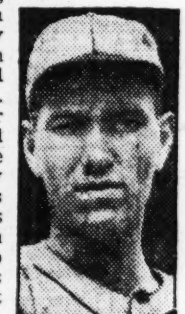

"How old are you, Diz?" I asked him.

"Just 28," he said. "My old sergeant who handled me in the army can prove it. I was just a kid when I joined the army here in Texas about eight or nine years ago. I know I'm getting a little gray, but that doesn't mean 'nothin'." When anybody likes to pitch as much as I do and is always afraid his arm will fall off, he's liable to get gray."

ABOUT THE DEAN ARM. I got Dizzy to show me where the arm injury took place.

"Right here," he said, touching the big muscle under his right shoulder blade, about four inches from the tip of his right shoulder.

"It happened in Boston. I felt something snap and it hurt. Charlie Moran was umpiring and he knew right away I had run into trouble. It may have been what they call bursitis where all the Vice President in C. C. Slapnicka juice runs out of the muscles and the nerves. I'll admit I haven't tried to throw any baseball this winter, but I've tried golf and it doesn't hurt any more to swing a club. I honestly think the old wing will be O. K. again.

"Gosh, but I'd like to have that old leg back—like I had against those Tigers. You don't have to throw it like 'em know you've got it."

"I'll tell you a funny story," he continued. "In my game against the Yankees you know and I know I should have shut them out 3 to 0 if our infield hadn't started blocking and tackling and turned an easy infield grounder into a two-base hit and two runs. When Crossetti came up near the finish and we were leading, 3 to 2, I had to pitch with the tying run on first and the count 3 and 2. I knew Crossetti had hit only two home runs all year. So I had to put one over with a prayer. When he hit that home run I followed him all the way from first to third, calling him every name I could think of that wasn't clean."

"I finally yelled, 'You dirty so-and-so! I only wish I had the arm I had two years ago and you couldn't get a foul off me in two months.'"

"Crossetti only laughed and that burned me up even more. I don't guess anybody hates to lose a ball game as much as I do."

DOING ALL RIGHT. "How many games do you want me to win this year?" Diz asked.

"At least 15," I said.

"I think I can do that," he answered—and this time seriously. "I was afraid you were going to say 30."

"How about Paul and the Giants?" I asked Dizzy.

"Paul's going to surprise 'em this year," Diz replied. "He's back in good shape. His arm is much better. He had a lot of stuff at the finish. I guess the Deans are still a gamble, but this time I'm hoping we are on the winning side."

"How are you fixed now, Diz?" I said.

"I'm doing all right. Pat and I own this home in Dallas (a nice-looking, roomy house with a nice yard) and I've just bought a 150-acre farm. Don't worry about my benefits. I've picked cotton and been back of a plow before. I can do it again. I came up the hard way and I can go back the hard way and handle it if the breaks get tough. I've worked from sunup to sundown, living on a can of sardines and three crackers. And don't forget I came from Arkansas, whether Arkansas wants to admit it or not."

A great pitcher—when his arm was right—and in my book just as great a fellow—if you know him.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP)—The Maritime Commission authorized the United States Lines today to operate the S. S. Manhattan between New York and the Italian ports of Naples and Genoa. Traveling west bound, the vessels may stop at Monaco to pick up passengers only.

The commission said the sailings between New York and Italy would be made at two-week intervals, but no announcement was made when they would begin.

KISS AFTER MIDNIGHT

Sue Tells Faith the Minister's Wife Said She Was Too Young to Marry

By Margaret Gorman Nichols.

SYNOPSIS. Faith Gardner, orphaned as a child, leaves a New England village, makes her own way in New York and after two years furnishes an apartment with Gretchen Cole and is secretary to Walter Edmonds, vice president of a large firm. Gretchen, stylist in a big store, left an Ohio town after a shattered romance. At a party given by Edmonds and his wife Astrid, Faith meets Franz Brackner, musician and composer, whom Astrid loves. Even before Faith meets Carl Edmonds, Walter's brother, a famous aviator, she is in love with him. The despair when Carl says he will never marry because of his roving hazardous life. Gretchen is promoted to Paris by Edmonds and refuses to marry Philip Turner but by accident they sail together to Paris and marry there. Young Michael Britton wants Walter's 16-year-old daughter Sue to elope with him, she refuses, then yes her again. Walter sends Faith to Florida with Sue and there Sue finds Michael. Walter goes alone to visit Sue and as he is rebuking himself for his feelings toward Faith, Astrid and she is arranging a divorce. Carl appears, hates Faith for taking Walter from Astrid, says he himself finally knew he loved her, but says a cold good-bye. Back home, Walter asks Faith to marry him. Sue phones Faith that she eloped with Michael but is alone there in a small town hotel. Carl, he takes her there and they learn that Michael became angry when the minister's wife said Sue was too young to marry, told Sue he wanted her only because Walter would give him the best and left. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XXXV.

"The next town is the town we want. We could have flown if the weather had been decent and made it in no time at all." Then he said, "I won't be severe with her. Maybe you're right. Maybe she is a neglected child gone wrong. I never thought of that angle before."

Another tide of anger swept over her. "There are a good many things you haven't thought of, Carl."

Swerving the car to the right, they rode along narrow, small-town streets where the shops were closed, the street lights dimmed. Not seeing a hotel, Faith had a panicky moment when it occurred to her that perhaps in her confusion and shock she had not heard the name of the town correctly.

"Certainly a grim, unromantic spot," Carl said soberly, frowning, peering out. "Can you see anything that resembles a hotel?"

They came upon it suddenly, a dark brick building lighted only by an obscure sign. Carl stopped the car at the curb, looked up at the ugly structure and said, "And no doubt she thought it was going to be very lovely and exciting. Poor kid. Somebody will have to care a great deal about her after this and take away the bad taste of this. Do you want to go up?"

"Yes, I suppose so."

"He may be with her now. I don't know what we're going to find. Have you thought of that?"

"We won't understand any of it until we see her."

He got out, opened the door and helped her out. A leaking spot dripped down them as they walked up the steps and into the poorly furnished lobby where a lone desk looked at them sleepily.

"Carl said, 'I'd like to see Mrs. Britton. Mrs. Michael Britton.'"

As the sleepy clerk fumbled over the register, Faith's heart raced. What if Sue had left . . . what if she had decided Faith was not coming for her . . . what if the clerk glanced up at Carl.

"Yes, sir, Michael Britton is in 312. Sorry, but you'll have to wait. The elevator don't run after 12 o'clock."

Stairs covered with worn carpet creaked. Carl's distaste for his task was obvious. Faith shivered in her wet clothes and walked beside him. The second floor. . . The third floor finally. . . The narrow, half-lighted hall. Pausing before 312 they looked at each other.

The unhappiness in his eyes dissolved her anger, leaving her weak with loving him, making her want to touch him. For a little while he had loved her. Was it spent completely? Was there nothing left of it? Their glances held not for each other, she knew, but for Sue who was in that room.

He knocked lightly and when there was no response knocked hard. Presently they heard the sound of light, young footsteps.

The door came open with a rush and Sue, wearing a black velvet frock with lace collars and cuffs, a beautiful new frock badly rumpled now, her face shiny, her hair disheveled, her eyes not only red from crying but filled with a lost, bitter look, stood there, looking at them. The sound she gave was a whimper and it was to Faith she turned. Faith took her and held her like a child for a few moments. Faith glanced about the shabby room, seeing no sign of Michael Britton or any of his belongings.

"We've come to take you home, Sue."

Slowly Sue drew away, putting a crumpled handkerchief to her nose. She seemed calmer.

"He left me. . . He said. . ."

Faith wondered if Carl wished to hear the sordid story here. She wanted to be out of the wretched place. Better the cold and the rain, than the ugliness of this room, this building which held the broken dreams of a young girl who had cried for hours while she waited. Love can be turned into such a shabby thing.

She glanced at Carl, her heart moving unsteadily. She thought, "I love you so. When I look at you, nothing is ugly. I could even live in this room and it wouldn't be ugly—wifely. And you think that my devotion to Sue is only a pretense. You can't see the tears behind my lashes. And while I'm here with you and Sue, Astrid may be on her way to Reno. I may lose my chance to see her. If she's gone, she's gone and we've lost Carl. We've lost each other. And forever is a long time not to be with you. . ."

Sue said, "I thought you'd never come. I thought of the worst things. Accidents. . . I didn't know how you'd come. Faith, how would you get here. I—I didn't know what to do. I . . ."

Helpless now, looking at both of them gratefully. . .

"You knew we'd come, Sue."

Carl asked gently, "Haven't you had any dinner?"

"Yes, I ate something up here — to make the time go faster." Her voice tore at them again. "Well, why don't you ask me what happened?"

"You can tell us on the way back," Carl said.

"No, I'd rather tell you now and get it over. . ."

She walked a little away from them, her hands clenched. Faith liked her for facing them.

"He . . . Oh, I don't know how to say it now. . . We came here today and registered right away so that we could leave our bags and then we went to a clergyman in the town. I was so happy. It didn't seem wrong — then! I thought. . ."

She moistened her lips. "Yes, I've been seeing him all along. In Florida, too. I knew he'd be there and one day on the beach I saw him. I was looking for him. Oh, I know I should have told you but I—I thought. . . I didn't know it would be like this."

She paused for a full minute. Then she said, "We went to the clergyman's and. . . Oh, it was. . ."

Carl's voice was strong and steady and kind. Faith felt that her lips were leaning on him now though half a room separated them. "Try to tell us just once clearly, Sue. We won't bother you."

with questions after that. Tell us what happened."

"The clergyman met us and his wife came down and we went into the living room and. . . and Michael was talking to him while his wife went out to get the cook for a witness. And. . . And when she came back, his wife, I mean, she began to talk to me. Then when we were standing up, she said. . . she told her husband that she wouldn't let him marry us! She said I was too young! She said that sort of thing should be stopped—children running away and getting married—and she was sure I wasn't of age and that my father and mother. . ."

"Yes?" Carl asked. He shot a quick glance at Faith. "What happened then?"

"Everything! Oh, everything!" She turned her head away and pushed her hair away from her face. "They had a terrible argument, the woman and Michael, and she said she was going to telephone my father. . . she said she wouldn't be a witness to such a thing. Then her husband got in it and I began to cry and Michael got mad and. . ."

She faced them again. "He turned on me and he said he had never loved me, that I was just a kid and that—that it was a safe berth he was looking for for himself, all the time and that if I thought he was in love with me, I was crazy and that he was just pretending. . . He said he was sick of the whole thing, of me. . . And he walked out!"

"The woman wanted me to stay. She was awfully nice, she wanted me to let her call New York but I couldn't let her do that. I was here a little while and then I left and came back here, Michael had been here for his bag but he was gone. Then I remembered that I'd given him all the money I had this morning. . . Angry now, she said, 'That's not the first money I've given him.'"

Carl was breathing easily now. "Then you didn't marry him." It was a statement of profound relief.

Sue said, her voice stronger, "I didn't marry him and I hate him. He didn't mean anything, he said. It was just daddy's money. Daddy will never know about this, will he, or mother? I didn't marry him so there's nothing. . . You won't tell them, will you?"

Leg Men

By RALPH MCGILL

When talking with some of the reporters about these "visits" to The Constitution office, one of them said:

"No reporter is any older than his legs."

That's an old saying around newspaper shops. There are old-timers who insist there are no good reporters since the telephone took some of the leg work out of newspapering. But that isn't true.

If you were at The Constitution all day you'd see them come in—

A quick look at the mail boxes to see if there is a letter, perhaps a check for some correspondence—or perhaps even, a check instead for that short story that went off last month.

Then a word or so with the city editor or the day city editor.

Then some copy paper folded into a square, a look to see if the pencils are all right. And then out on the street—

The leg men have gone to work.

There is one at the police station. In his press-room office at the station is a typewriter and a telephone direct to The Constitution office. This reporter knows the chief, the officers. He gets to know many police characters. He knows where the fires are, almost as soon as the firemen. He knows the arrests that come in—the drunks, the murderers, the thieves—he sifts it all for news.

There are reporters at the city hall—seeing the mayor, city officials—at the Federal buildings, seeing the district attorney, the FBI, the tax offices—hunting news. There are reporters at the courthouse—seeing the commissioners, the department heads.

Their business is to make contacts—to learn the persons on their "beats"; to learn where and when news is likely to happen—to be able to find the news in a long row of figures, in columns of dull reports.

There are reporters at meetings of clubs, of organizations, at the public hearings, at the meetings of committees.

These are the leg men. More than anyone else on newspapers they get to know human nature—to see people in the raw—they grow wise eyes and keen minds.

Being a leg man rarely leads to riches, but it can be, as hundreds have found out, a very satisfactory way of life.

The leg men are the real reporters. Some of them not always write their stories. If they are pressed for time they telephone in to rewrite men, who take the report and write the story for the paper. You ought to hear what the leg men have to say, at times, about the rewrite men.

"How could any man take such living, breathing notes and turn out such a dull yarn?"

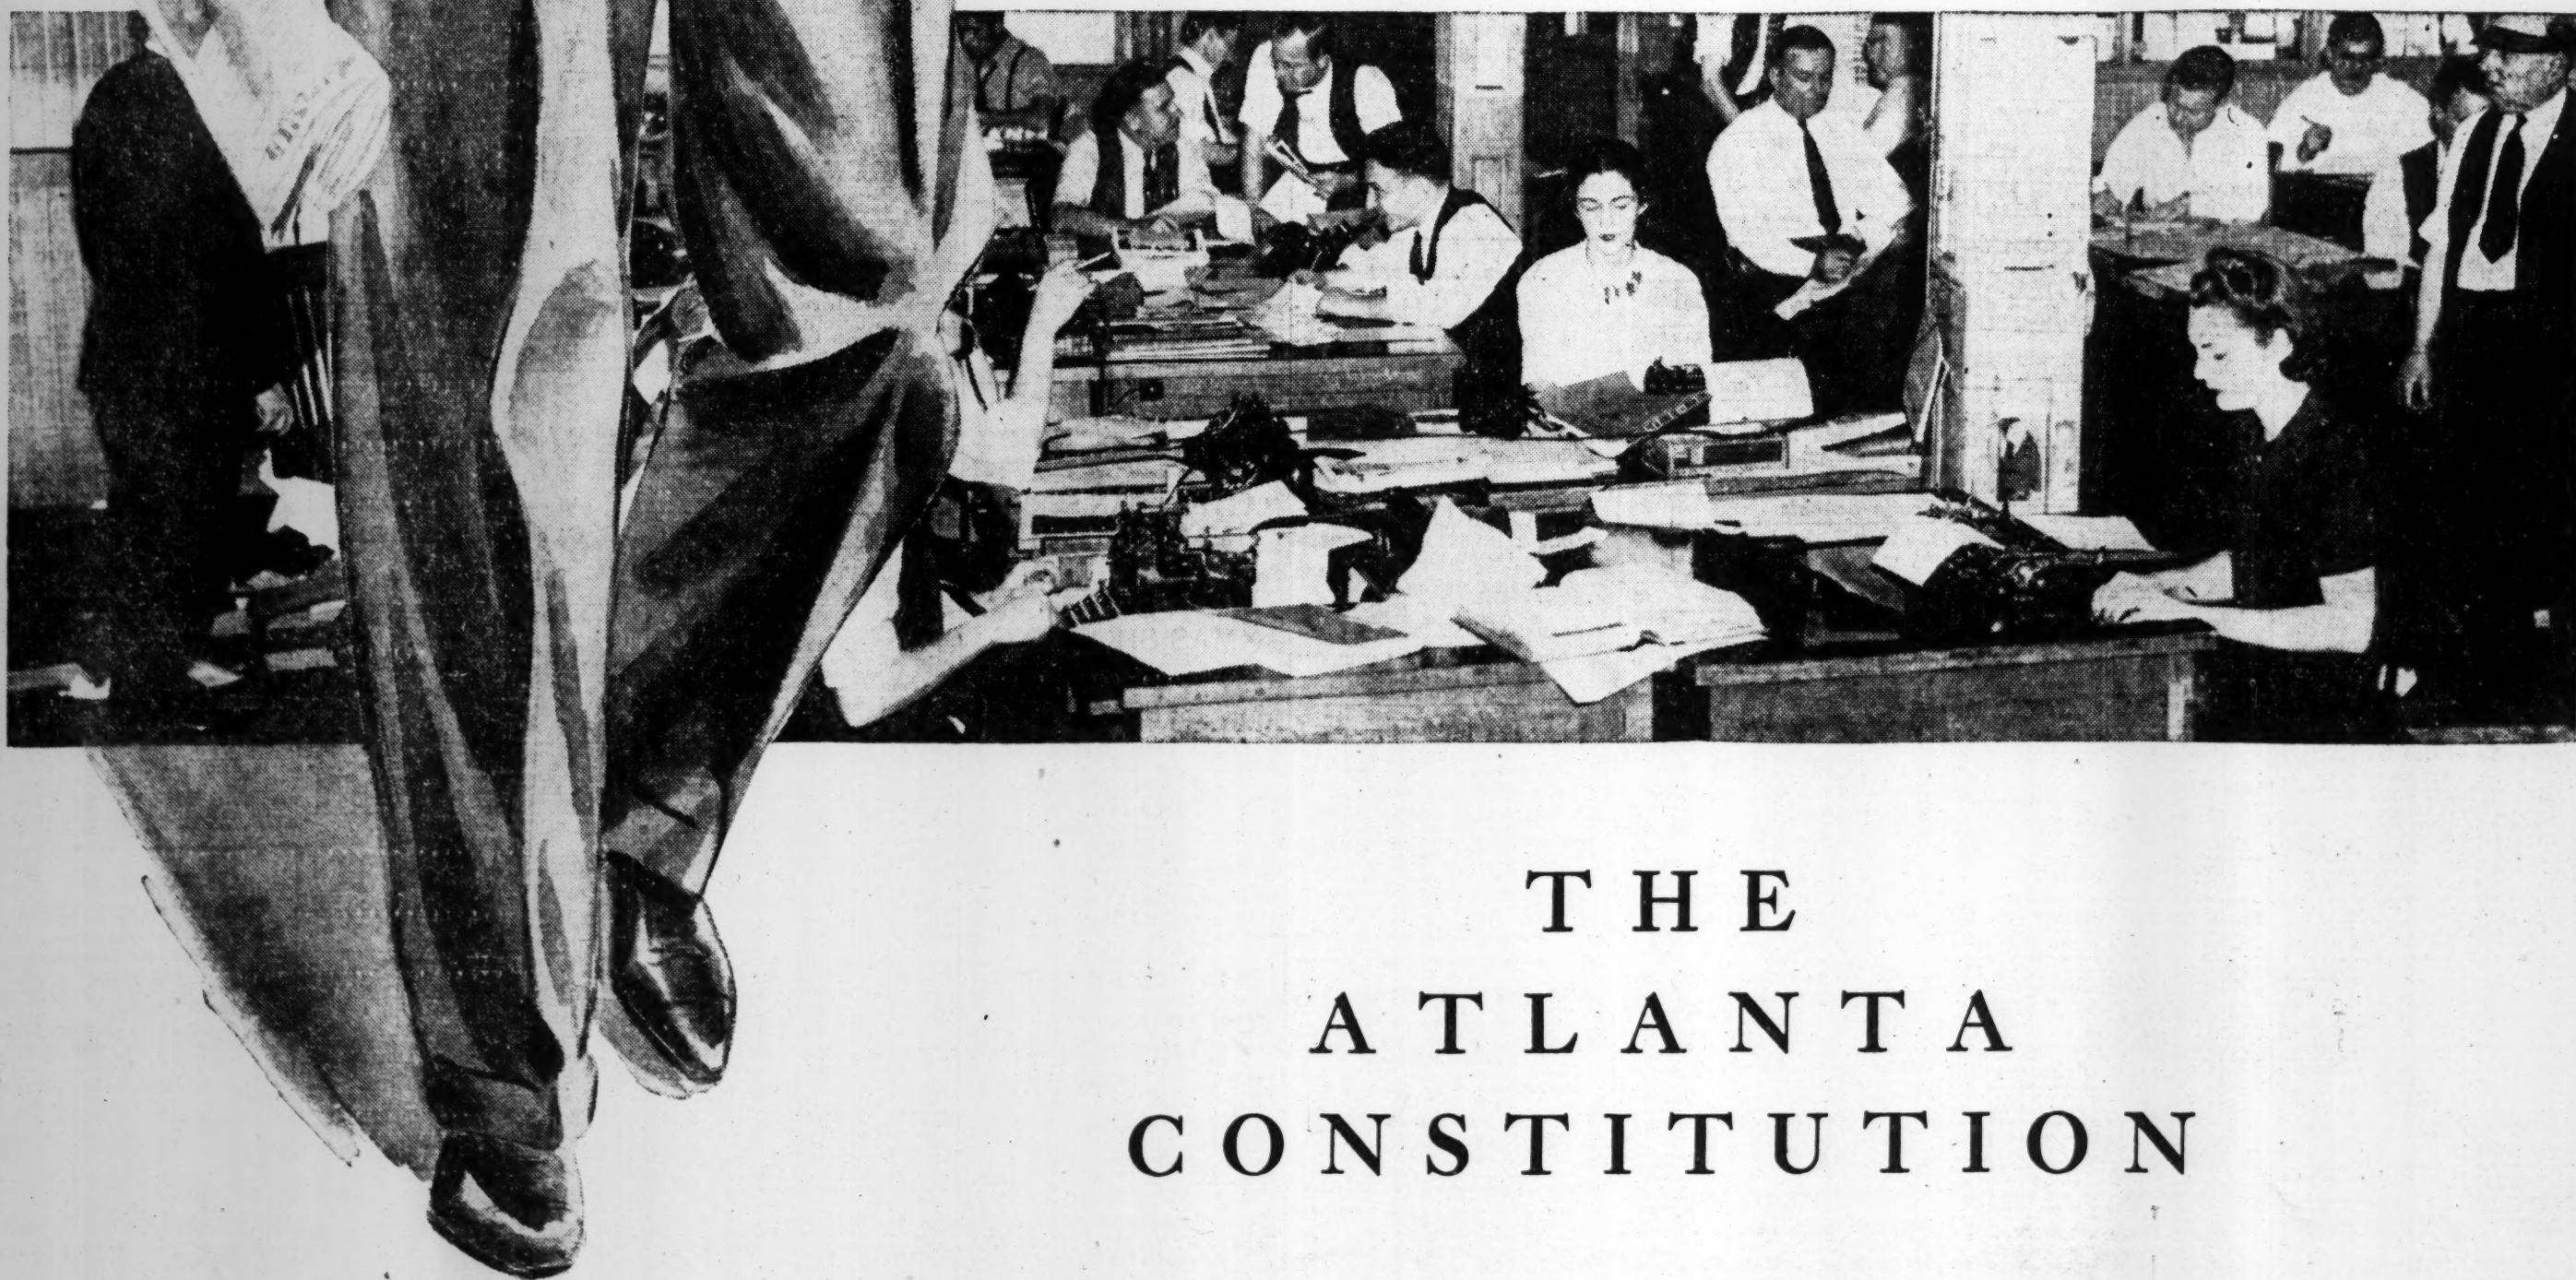

That's a part of the tradition, too. No leg man ever knew a good rewrite man and no rewrite man ever admitted to a leg man that he—the leg man—had anything on the ball.

There is some fun in the work—

The leg men—no older than their legs.

Next week—come early—on your second visit to The Atlanta Constitution—and have a seat—

ON THE RIM OF THE WORLD!

Collins Advises Schools To Open After Christmas

Superintendent Uncertain About Financing, But Rivers Tells Educators Their Interests Come Before Those of Roads in Emergency.

Georgia educators assumed a more cheerful outlook in the public school financial crisis yesterday, following the Governor's week-end declaration that if it comes to a choice between the schools and the highways, the schools will be first.

The State School Department frankly admits it doesn't know if funds for the public schools will be available after January 1, but Dr. M. D. Collins, state school superintendent, advises county school officials to reopen classes after the Christmas holidays and operate as long as possible.

That the school program as now conducted in Georgia has public support, is evidenced in recent county school elections. Five incumbent school superintendents within the past month have been overwhelmingly re-elected over opposition. They are O. N. Tharp, Telfair county; T. P. Spell, Toombs county; J. W. Fowler, Treutlen; Bob Hollis, Johnson, and A. B. Blackburn, Emanuel.

N. P. Malcolm, Seminole, and T. L. Everett, Ware, were re-elected without opposition. The school department, like other state departments, has been operating on a 60 per cent basis. Early in the fall, Governor Rivers guaranteed the school authorities enough money to operate four months. This would carry most schools to January 1. He borrowed money from the Highway Department and the Confederate veterans' pension fund to do this. The current month's salaries will be paid from the ad valorem tax collections which are due Wednesday.

COLLECTOR ISSUES LAST TAX WARNING

Fi. Fa. Levying Starts Today for Defaulters.

T. Earl Suttles, state and county tax collector, yesterday issued a final warning to Fulton county taxpayers.

"Today is the final days to pay 1939 taxes without penalty, and all taxes not paid at the close of business today will be subject to fi. fa.," he said.

Mr. Suttles' office was swamped with taxpayers. He reported it one of the heaviest days on record. In addition, thousands of mail payments are yet to be worked over and receipts issued.

STONE MOUNTAIN NEARS CENTENNIAL

City To Be Decorated for Gala Celebration
Thursday.

The city of Stone Mountain will commemorate its 100th anniversary Thursday. The city first was known as New Gibraltar, and the mountain itself was called Rock mountain. A few years later both were changed to Stone Mountain.

Stone mountain was once swamped for a gun, which is still in existence and will be featured in the celebration displays, as will be the clock which survived the depot fire after Sherman's march.

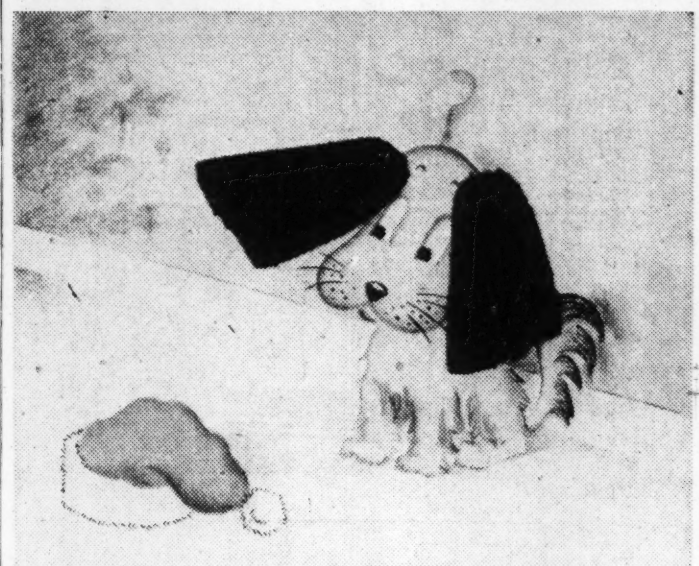

The entire city, led by the mayor, city council, and civic clubs, is sponsoring a movement to decorate the town. Every business house has been remodeled and painted. Lights have been strung on all main streets, and private homes also will be lighted and decorated.

Climaxing the festivities will be the Centennial ball at the Stone Mountain school auditorium, which will be held Thursday evening.

CHIEF PAYS, GLADLY, FOR CHRISTMAS TREES

GRANTS PASS, Ore., Dec. 18. (AP)—Fire Chief Homer Gable wanted two Christmas trees. He drove to a near-by hillside and found two dandies.

Dragging them to the road, he found himself confronted by a woman.

"That's my property. Them's my trees. They're 25 cents each," she said.

Chief Gable didn't quibble. She had a rifle across one arm.

HITLER'S EX-INTIMATE DENIED U. S. PAPERS

DETROIT, Dec. 18.—(UP)—Kurt G. W. Ludecke, one-time confidant of Chancellor Adolf Hitler, was denied American citizenship today.

Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle pronounced the denial "with prejudice" after lecturing the former Nazi agent on the meaning of Americanism and declaring that "the old Ludecke," the intimate of Hitler, may not be dead.
